

250-Million Tax Bill Drops Into Conference Between Senate-House

Several Controversies Threaten But Democratic Leaders Hope These Disputes Will Iron Out to Allow Congress Adjournment.

STRONG OPPOSITION

Big Stumbling Block is Question of Estates and Inheritance Taxes.

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP).—After streaking through the Senate in record time, the tax bill designed to raise $250,000,000 from new levies on million-dollar incomes, large corporations, estates and gifts dropped today into a Senate-House conference in which several controversies threatened.

The Democratic leaders hoped these disputes could be settled in time to adjourn congress next week. One controversy started even before the Senate, by a 57 to 22 vote, passed its finance committee's bill late yesterday at the end of only two days of debate.

It centered around an amendment, which the Senate approved at the urging of Senator Borah (R-Ida.), to prohibit the federal government from issuing any more tax exempt securities in the future. The treasury was fighting this, and there was opposition in the house.

Another stumbling block facing Senate-House conferees who will seek to reconcile the senate bill with a markedly different measure already passed by the House was the question of taxes on estates and inheritances. The Senate substituted increases in the present estate taxes for the brand-new inheritance levies approved by the House.

Higher Gift Taxes

(The Senate also voted for higher gift taxes on donor, instead of the House's new levies on recipients of gifts; it raised the surtax rates on individual net incomes over $1,000,000, whereas the House started the boosts at $50,000; it increased the House graduated corporation income taxes, reduced the other chamber's excess profits rates, increased existing capital stock taxes and imposed a new tax on dividends received by one corporation from another.)

The Borah amendment, approved 40 to 39, would make the income from future issues of government bonds subject to the income tax. Treasury officials argued it would seriously handicap the Roosevelt financial program and place the government at a disadvantage in borrowing since states and municipalities would still enjoy the right to issue tax-free securities.

Besides making it difficult to obtain funds to finance the $4,000,000,000 work relief program, officials said, the amendment would raise the cost of all money obtained by the government.

President Roosevelt in his tax message had recommended a constitutional amendment to permit simultaneous taxation of income from both federal and state bonds.

Expect Opposition.

The Senate's scrapping of inheritance levies was expected to encounter strong House opposition in conference. The proposed inheritance taxes ranged from 10 per cent on the first taxable $10,000 to 75 per cent on that portion over $10,000,000. For these, the Senate substituted increases in existing taxes on estates. These new levies would rise from 2 per cent on the first taxable $10,000 to 70 per cent on the excess over $50,000,000.

President Roosevelt recommended an inheritance tax to be superimposed on existing estate levies as a means of breaking up large fortunes.

Another amendment added by the Senate yesterday without a record vote was the plan of Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) to repeal three sections of the silver purchase act. These levy a 50 per cent tax on silver trading profits, provide for nationalization of the metal and increase of imports and exports. Some legislators said this was headed toward a doubtful fate in conference.

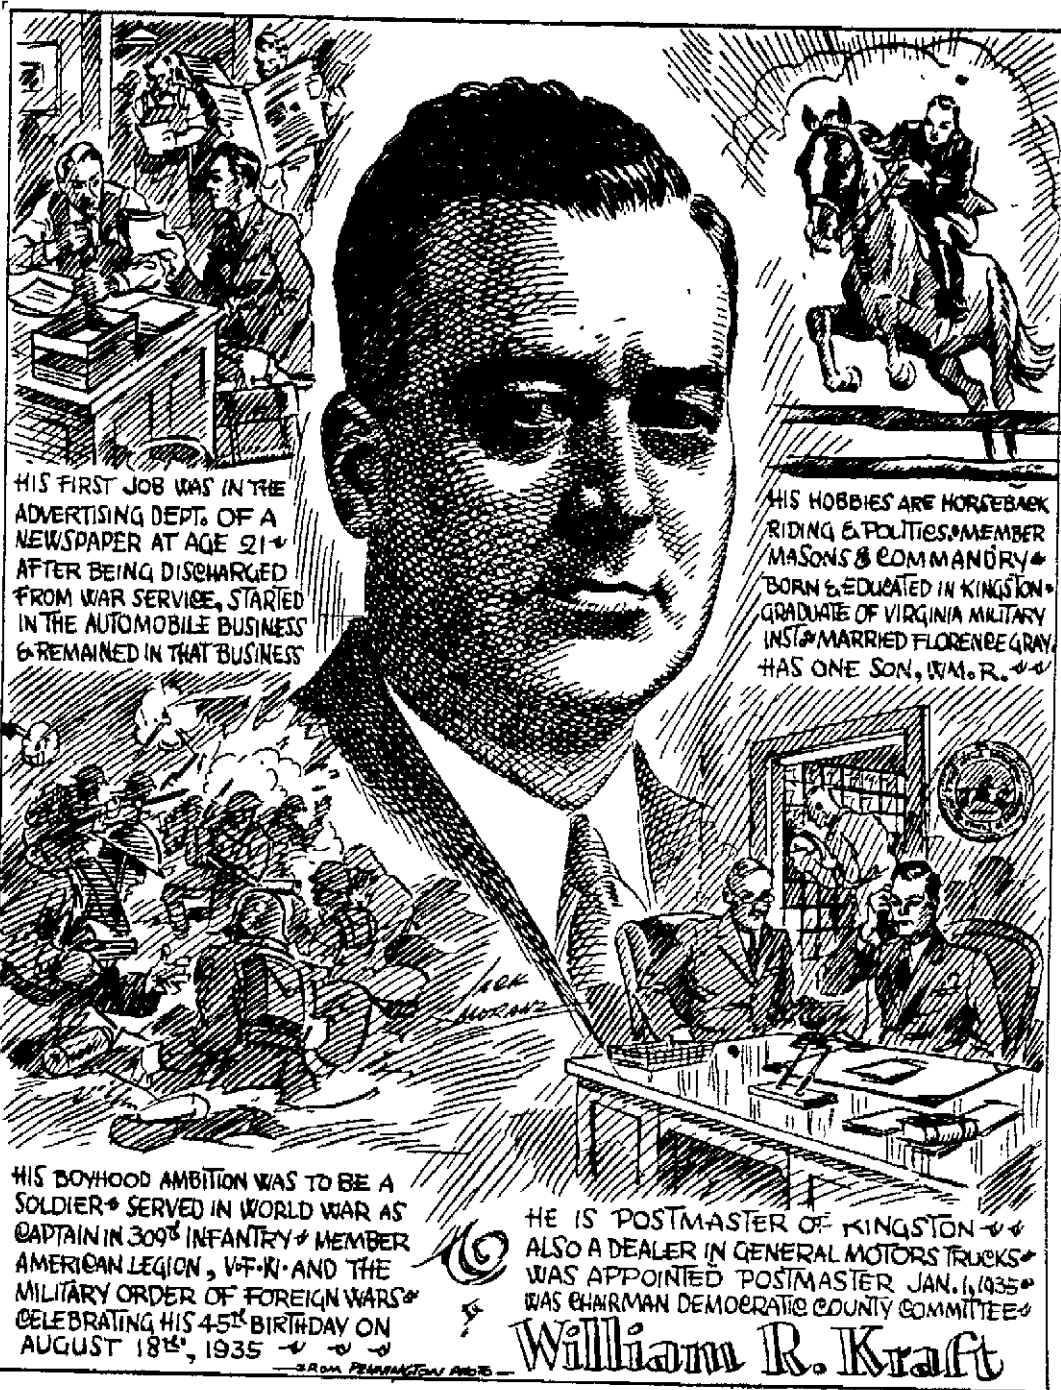

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP).—The position of the treasury on August 15 was: Receipts, $54,719,534.14; expenditures, $110,566,507.02; net balance, $1,577,950,236.92; customs receipts for the month, $15,243,752.42. Receipts for the fiscal year ending July 31, $1,666,708,405.49; expenditures, $1,622,270,497.49; including $512,311,219.47 of emergency expenditures. Excess of expenditures, $155,562,091.60. Gross debt, $23,013,125,752.28. Decrease of $22,275,748.25 under the previous day. Gold assets, $9,152,520,522.82.

4 Boys Charged with Damaging Gardens

Four boys taken into custody Thursday by Patrolman William Hess, charged with damaging property at the relief gardens in the "lowlands" will be arraigned in police court, Saturday.

The boys, following a bathing party in the Esopus Creek, passed through the gardens, picked tomatoes from the vines and threw them at one another, according to the report at police headquarters.

It is the intention of the police to bring as much pressure to bear on the four as possible in order to impress them and others that they must stay out of the relief gardens.

Predicts Re-election

Madison, Wis., Aug. 16 (AP).—Governor Philip F. LaFollette predicted the re-election of President Roosevelt in a statement made public today. The Wisconsin Progressive party leader upon his return from a visit to Washington, said he believed that Mr. Roosevelt would have no opposition from a third party candidate, and that the Progressives in Wisconsin and Liberals in other states would support him. "Despite criticism of the President and a certain amount of complaining," the governor said, "the voter next fall will have to choose between Roosevelt and some other man. If the Republicans select a man closely affiliated with the Hoover group, the average voter will support Roosevelt in preference."

Steak Before Bed

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 16 (AP).—Two Tacoma "Tazans," after a cold hungry week in the Woods, fortified themselves with steaks today before tackling 15 tons of brick. The two, Tom Vitos, 22, and Graham Ring, 19, watered 100 days of labor against $200 that they could live in primitive luxury in the wilderness for a month. To win the $200 from William Reed, Tacoma druggist, they went into the woods August 7. Their only equipment was hunting knives, fishing lines and hooks and a cigarette lighter to build fires. They wore trunks and shoes. Fish were scarce. They killed no game. They nearly froze at night.

At Faneuil Island

Copenhagen, Aug. 16 (AP).—Thor Solberg, nearing the completion of his flight across the North Atlantic, left his plane down at Thorshavn, Faroe Islands, at 1 p.m. G. M. T. (S. T. T.) today. Solberg and Paul Omsund left Hornsjoerf, Iceland, early today for Bergen, Norway. They are expected to reach Bergen at 5 p.m. G. M. T. (noon E. S. T.). completing a flight from Brooklyn across the North Atlantic, started July 14.

The selection of Saratoga Springs as the convention city for 1936, and the adoption of resolutions thanking Mayor C. J. Heiselman, the local Patrolman's Association and the citizens of Kingston for the hospitality extended the delegates brought the tenth annual New York State Police Conference to a close here at noon today.

All of the business sessions of the conference were held in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium on Broadway with President Peter Keresman presiding.

With the selection of Saratoga Springs for 1936, the president of the police association of Saratoga Springs, David Cunningham, automatically became president of the conference. The new president was in attendance at the session this morning and was introduced to the delegates.

President Cunningham spoke briefly thanking the convention for the honor it had conferred upon Saratoga Springs in selecting it for the 1936 convention and assured the delegates that they would be royally welcomed there next year.

While the conference was in session an announcement was made that over the radio had come the news of the death of Wiley Post and Will Rogers, and the conference arose and stood in silence for a minute in respect to their memory.

The convention committee in making its recommendation that Saratoga Springs be chosen for 1936 stated that the Conference had been honored by the great demand on the part of several cities for the privilege of entertaining the members of the conference next year. The committee reported it had carefully examined and inquired into all the advantages claimed on behalf of the various cities submitting convention bids.

The committee stated that it felt that each and every city submitting a bid was equally desirable as a convention city and that the members would have a thoroughly enjoyable stay in each.

Expensive Selection
In making its selection the committee had been compelled to keep in mind the objects of the conference and the best interests of its members, that is from a practical viewpoint. The objects of the conference are to bring about the performance of better police service for the benefit of the state, the report stated, and to bring about cooperation between its members to protect the interests of its members in matters that need a permanent and better job. This means civil service, permanent tenure of office, the right of court review, proper pension laws, living wages and the proper hours of service.

London, Aug. 16 (AP).—The British government announced today it has invited the United States, Japan, France, and Italy to a preliminary naval conference "about October."

The conference would follow bilateral discussions which Great Britain has scheduled with France, Italy and Russia. These bilateral discussions are expected to begin in September.

The purpose of the preliminary conference would be to discuss a possible agreement in naval limitation, the whole to be consummated at a formal conference as provided in the Washington treaty of 1922, at some future date.

DENVER POSTAL AUTHORITIES CHAIN LETTER POST MORTEM

Denver, Colo., Aug. 16 (AP).—Uncle Sam got more than a flock of headaches and bunions out of the recent chain letter craze. Postmaster J. O. Stevic disclosed today nearly $4,000 was impounded here in dimes, quarters and half dollars—all taken from chain letters that wound up in the dead letter department.

"At the height of the craze people's minds seemed completely unbalanced," commented Stevic. "They would stick into the mail-boxes letters containing perhaps dollar bills, and addressed to, say, John Jones, without a street address or stamp."

The money will be held a year, then turned over to the Treasury. Stevic said the Denver office alone handled more than 12,000,000 of the chain letters.

Will Rogers, Wiley Post Dead After Plane Crash In Alaska

Plane And Dead Fliers

WILEY POST

WILL ROGERS

Wiley Post, Famous Flier, Never Relaxed Aeronautic Ambition

Oklahoma City, August 15 (AP).—From a modest farm near Mayville, Okla., Wiley Post rose to become one of the world's greatest fliers—not satisfied with making the fastest time around the globe but pushing on to new achievement in the stratosphere.

Post had early ambitions to become an airplane pilot, and these were not stopped by an accident in a machine shop several years ago which cost him the sight of one eye. With Burrell Tibbs and Dorsey Askew as his instructors, he learned to fly and joined them as a parachute jumper in their "flying circus."

After three years of "journstorming" he settled down to become the personal pilot of F. C. Hall, wealthy independent oil operator, who later became his backer in the flights that brought Post and the Winnie Mac plane world fame.

Flew With Gatty

The stocky flier had Harold Gatty for a navigating partner in June and July, 1931, on his first record-making flight around the globe. Their time was 207 hours, and 51 minutes, less than ten days.

In 1932 Post set out alone from Floyd Bennett Field, New York, bent on breaking a record with the help of a navigator, who later became his backer in the flights that brought Post and the Winnie Mac plane world fame.

Post was born at Grand Saline, Tex. The aviation "bug" first bit him in 1912 while he was a rigger's helper in the Oklahoma oil fields.

His original investment in aviation was $25, which he took from the lean purse of a barnstorming pilot to give him "the works" of an ancient "Jenny."

It was five years later before Post flew again, but the virus of the flying "bug" had taken effect. This time he went out as a parachute jumper, at $25 a leap.

He saved enough to learn flying, but in 1924 he tired of piloting borrowed machines and went back to the oil fields to get together a stake for a ship of his own. The second day at work he lost his left eye when struck by a steel splitter clipped off a link pin.

Post's flying first attracted national attention in August, 1926, when he won the non-stop air derby from Los Angeles to Chicago.

From that time on, he was almost constantly in the forefront of aviation, following soon with the round-the-world flight with Gatty, then his solo record breaker, and recently his attempt to reach super-speed in the stratosphere.

Post used his faithful "Winnie Mac," the ship that carried him to the heights in his four unsuccessful attempts to span the continent in the stratosphere.

His reason for this, he said, was pure sentiment, and it was with reluctance that he saw her head for retirement recently after the last attempt.

The ship, a high-wing monoplane, was named for Winnie Mae Fahn, the daughter of Hall, Post's early financial backer.

Will Rogers' Personal History Was A Vivid, Truly American Story

Will Rogers was given the imposing name of William Penn Adair Rogers but everybody called him Will. He was a cowboy, humorist, writer, lecturer, philosopher, polo player, world traveler and flier, but he went up in the air only as a passenger.

He was born at Oologah, Indian Territory, November 4, 1879, but he called Claremore, Okla., his "home town" and he was a legal resident of Oklahoma although he spent most of his time at his ranch between Beverly Hills and Santa Monica, California.

He had Indian blood in his veins and was proud of it. One of his best wise-cracks was based upon this ancestry as he said that his ancestors did not come over on the Mayflower, but they met the boat.

His education came by said, by easy stages. "I studied the fourth reader for ten years," he told an interviewer, but he was a "kiddier" on and off the stage and many of his boasts of being "ignorant" could be taken with a grain of salt.

After he left the fourth reader behind him he went through the Willow Hassell school at Neesho, Mo., and Kemper Military Academy at Booneville and if he did not make a remarkable record for scholarship he did not fall.

His mother wanted him to become a Methodist minister but Will had learned to ride a horse and throw a rope on his father's ranch so he went back to the range. Then starting with medicine shows and carnivals he went on along the road that finally brought him to the very top of his profession as an actor.

A rancher, Zach Mulhall, organized a wild west show and Will joined it, finally reaching New York. There is a tradition that he first attracted public notice on a large scale when he lassoed a wild steer that broke loose at Madison Square Garden and was about to dash through the crowd.

On Vanderbilt Stage.

Certainly shortly after his first appearance at "The Garden" he was on the vaudeville stage, Charlie Mack of Moran and Mack told of Will's initial efforts in vaudeville. He was pretty bad said Mack and grew discouraged. He talked it over with Charlie.

"Where are you going?" asked Mack.

"Back to Oklahoma," "Been fired yet?"

"The manager said I was pretty good."

"You're all of that, but has he actually told you that you are fired?"

"Well, no."

"Don't quit till he tells you may-be you can kick it out to Saturday night. That will be three days more."

Before the week was out, Will happened to make a wise crack about something he saw in a newspaper, as

TOTAL WRECK

Two Killed Instantly—Tore Plane Apart to Recover Bruised Bodies of Fliers.

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press) Seattle, Aug. 16 (AP).—Will Rogers, cowboy philosopher, actor and air travel enthusiast, and Wiley Post, who circled the earth alone in a plane, were killed last night when their plane crashed 15 miles south of Point Barrow in northernmost Alaska.

The word of their death came today to the United States army signal corps headquarters here from their Point Barrow station.

The first terse message said:

"Post and Rogers crashed 15 miles south of here (Point Barrow) at five o'clock last night. Have recovered bodies and placed them in care of Dr. Greist (in charge of a small Point Barrow hospital). Standing by on Anchorage (Alaska) hourly."

The message was signed by Staff Sergeant Morgan, the only army man on duty at the small Point Barrow settlement.

Later, he wirelessed the plane crashed from only fifty feet in the air after taking off from a small river.

"Native runner reported plane crashed 15 miles south of Barrow. Immediately hired fast launch proceeded to scene found plane complete wreck, partially submerged two feet water."

"Recovered body of Rogers then necessary tear plane apart extract body of Post from water."

"Brought bodies to Barrow turned over to Dr. Greist, also salvaged personal effects which I am holding."

"Advise relatives and instruct this station fully as to procedure."

"Natives camping small river 15 miles south here claim Post and Rogers landed, asked way to Barrow."

"Taking off engine misfired on right bank while only 50 feet over water."

"Plane out of control, crashed, tearing right wing off and topping over forced engine back through body of plane."

"Both apparently killed instantly. Both bodies bruised."

"Post's wrist watch broken stopped 8:18 p. m."

Henry W. Greist operates the Presbyterian Hospital at Point Barrow, which is maintained primarily for the care of Eskimos.

Post and Rogers were on an aerial vacation which Post had planned would take him to Moscow but Rogers had not decided whether he would accompany him further than Nome where Wiley planned to establish a base for his projected flight across Siberia.

Barrow, northernmost white settlement in America, has a population of several hundred natives and about a dozen whites, including the signal corps operator, his wife and child, Dr. Greist, his family, and the nurses in the Presbyterian Hospital.

The accident occurred at the height of the brief Arctic summer when it is daylight almost around the clock.

The United States Coast Guard cutter Northland was waiting in the ice pack only a few miles away from Barrow on its annual visit to the settlement.

Post and Rogers had been entertained in Fairbanks for several days while their plane was being repaired. They flew in a "Winnie Mac" port plane to Anchorage Wednesday but set their plane down on Harding Lake, 50 miles away, to await lifting of ice for the Barrow run.

The pair left Fairbanks last night but set their plane down on Harding Lake, 50 miles away, to await lifting of ice for the Barrow run.

To Visit Arctic King.

Rogers said he wanted to go to Barrow to visit Charles Brower, known throughout Alaska as the "King of the Arctic" because of his 51 years of residence.

Brower operates a trading post and whaling station at the settlement, which is 11 miles from where Point Barrow jets out into the Arctic Ocean.

This was Post's second crash in Alaska. On his first round-the-world flight, his red monoplane "Winnie Mac" was damaged in a forced landing near Flat on the Yukon river in Central Alaska.

Post was unborn and succeeded in regaining his plane and continuing his flight after a delay of less than a day.

Rogers' Unworn

Post had planned to continue his flight to Siberia after visiting Point Barrow and Nome. Whether Rogers was alone with him was not known.

COOLING BREEZE!

HERE'S a breakfast for a hot morning: A bowl of crisp Kellogg's Corn Flakes, with cool milk or cream, and some berries or sliced fruit. Delicious! And marvelously refreshing.

Kellogg's are rich in energy but light, easy to digest. An ideal dish for any hot-weather meal. The danger of heat-prostration is lessened when Kellogg's Corn Flakes are eaten in place of heavy, slowly digested foods.

Kellogg's are ready to serve. No cooking. They're the largest-selling Corn Flakes in the world because they're crispier—flavor is flavor. And the patented heat-sealed WAITITE bag keeps them even-fresh, even in hot, sultry weather. Quality guaranteed. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

At Westbury, L. I., many persons believed that the big, old-fashioned mansion that for years has stood hard by the Meadow Brook Hunt club, was haunted. Known as Phoenix Lodge, it was once the home of the eccentric multimillionaire, Jacques Lebaudy, son of the "sugar king" of France. Back in 1908, Lebaudy, who styled himself "Emperor of the Sahara," led an expedition into Africa to claim 3,500,000 acres of desert together with what he called, "the most valuable mines in the world." The adventure lasted just seven months. Then Lebaudy and his "empress" came to America and took up their abode in Phoenix Lodge. In the 50 rooms he installed costly furniture and tapestry, and had the 250-acre estate laid out in such beautiful formal gardens that it became the show place of Long Island. Incidentally, the French government had to send a cruiser to bring back Lebaudy's "subjects."

Ten years passed. Then came the happening that laid the foundation for the ghost story which caused the timid to whistle and hurry when they passed Phoenix Lodge at night. Though she had unlimited wealth and was living in a mansion finer than many a famed palace of old, Mrs. Lebaudy evidently wasn't happy. The proof lies in the fact that one night, she shot the "Emperor of the Sahara." She alleged that he had beaten her and some time later, she was acquitted by a jury on her plea of self-defense. Then she went back to France and Phoenix Lodge fell not only into disrepair but also into disrepute. Weeds choked the gardens; the tapestries rotted—and there were stories of mysterious lights and noises.

Eventually, government agents—G-men are not superstitious—it seems—decided it might be well to look into these tales. So they kept watch on the decadent mansion for some time. Then they made a raid and captured, not a cheating wraith, but a still, capable of turning out 1,000 gallons of alcohol a day and so modern that it required merely a single attendant. And now Phoenix Lodge is merely an old house where there was a shooting.

Maybe you've heard of Harold Pflieger, who, since last November, has had 14 blood transfusions. That fourteen-year-old's fight for life has been grim business indeed. But he has refused to take it that way. So the doctors and nurses of New York hospital are strong for the cheerful, game youngster—so strong indeed that they decided to do something more for him than called for in the daily routine. Questioning developed the fact that the one thing in all the world he wanted was a dog. As a matter of fact, he had even picked out a name, Terry, for the dog he hoped some day to own.

In a short time, Harold's wish reached the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It came at just the right moment, too, because there was waiting at the animal hospital at Avenue A and Twenty-third street, a dog that needed a boy—a stray wire-haired fox terrier with a tan face and white whiskers. The dog wasn't transferred to Harold—that couldn't be done because of hospital rules—so his brother acted as his representative. Then with Terry, the brother went up to New York hospital.

Harold was waiting. His bed is five doors above the street, but those doctors and nurses pushed it close to the window and he could see his brother and his dog walking slowly up and down on the sidewalk below. Every afternoon, there is that same parade. Maybe it was that last transfusion and maybe it was the dog. At any rate, a telephone message to the hospital reveals the fact that in a very short time now Harold will be well enough to go home.

Ohio to Pay for Morgan

Morgan Stole in 1864

Columbus, Ohio.—Seventy-one years after General Morgan and his Confederate raiders entered southern Ohio and carried off provisions and other booty, the state of Ohio has acquiesced in a claim against his troops.

The legislature has agreed to pay a claim of $900 occasioned by the theft of some horses by Morgan and his men during the war between the states.

Unless Governor Davey vetoes the item, Leoda Burke Oyler, of Cincinnati, will receive a check for $900 from the state of Ohio.

The claim was filed with the state many, many years ago. But each time it came up it was shunted aside, although the federal government sent the state a check years ago to meet the obligation.

Tombstone, Ariz. — Tombstone, the town that proudly describes itself as "the town that was too tough to die," is nothing if not fearless, despite accusations that it is living in its glamorous past.

Members of the Tombstone American Legion post will march in the grand parade at the National Legion convention in St. Louis next September, bearing banners, "Tombstone, 1879 Convention City."

That, of course, is only 40 years in the future.

AT SUMMER THEATRES

The Maverick—"Noah"

The majority of those who regularly attend the performances of Robert Elwyn's troupe at The Maverick Theatre are not going to enjoy this week's performance, "Noah" by Andre Obey, as well as they have other plays; they are going to wonder just what it all means, if it is an attempt to picture what a playwright thought of Noah and family plus animals when the flood and following incidents occurred, or if it is symbolic or perhaps a fantasy. All three expressions came from the lips of the audience last night, and each might have been correct.

One wonders if Noah's three sons were half-wits or were they just simple happy folk? Noah in his casual conversations with Jehovah, his pleas for instruction in building the Ark, his calls for help while that good ship was taking its "sail" and his subsequent appeal and challenge that his "patience" would never end, brings to mind the oft-presented argument that Jehovah was somewhat of a bickerer at first and passed through a transition even as the people he created. At one point in the play Noah is certain that Jehovah has deserted him and his flock of men and beasts, saying the Great Father was tired and taking a little vacation having forgotten his flood bound victims.

Noah's children, especially Ham, proved to be doubting Thomases and even his wife questioned his sanity if faithful to his inspiration. Only the animals were true friends and proved servants during the forty days of rain and in the end the children take their departure without a word of farewell to "Papa," leaving him a broken old man. His wife dies on the peak of Mount Ararat and Noah faces an entirely new world, a simple farmer called upon to perform a great service for God and left to shift for himself when the job was done.

It is not a pretty picture, not the story the Bible tells, at least the Good Book does not emphasize the failings of the flock and note the subsequent despair. We are inclined to think the Bible did a better job in setting down the story.

The largest cast of characters to appear on the boards of the Maverick stage is congregated in this production. The actors play with enthusiasm and abandon. The scenery is unique and the costumes are amusing. To Mr. Elwyn goes honor for a stellar performance as Noah and to Velma Royton second honors as Mama.

If you like something different by all means see "Noah," but the chances are that you will find the same problems in your mind as did the first night audience; you may even be a little bored at times. The Elwyn troupe has attempted something different and different it is. If you like the unusual you will like "Noah."—R. K. H.

Revolt in Albania

London, Aug. 16 (AP)—An exchange telegraph dispatch from Athens reported today unconfirmed rumors of a revolt in Albania headed by Chekvet Veriazzi, "who at one time entertained hope his daughter would marry King Zog." Gen. Leon Gagliardi, King Zog's friend and counsellor and inspector of the Albanian army, was assassinated yesterday.

JAPANESE COLLAPSE?

An interesting slant on the Japanese situation comes from Drs. W. W. Winars and J. L. Wielawski, two Polish psychiatrists who have spent three years in the Far East studying oriental psychology and are now in America. It at least helps to explain Japan.

The Japs, these experts say, are trying to do two irreconcilable things—to preserve their old loose system of life with independent families under a divine emperor, and at the same time to build up a western industrial civilization which requires a tightly organized community. They are taught their ancestral faith of living for their families alone, and yet are made to go forth into the world of modern life. "The result," the doctors say, "is a conflict in the Japanese mind which has led in recent months to an unbelievable rise in the number of suicides, and which eventually will lead to the collapse of the present system."

The day of reckoning will come, they declare. Japanese working classes have less freedom than any other nation gives its workers. They are bitterly exploited. Eventually they will rise and create a Communist revolution. The Chinese, going more slowly and rationally into western life, will finally be ahead of the Japs. We'll know more about that 50 years from now.

TALKLESS TALKIES

One of the big motion picture concerns announces it is going to make a picture using music in place of speech. This experiment will be welcomed by a number of critics who believe that the movies took a backward step when the talkie became possible. The makers of film dramas went too far with their dialogue, slowing up action. Instead of developing its own artistic potentialities, the screen became a mere imitation of the stage. What the screen needs, declares Producer Carl Laemmle, is pantomime action so vivid that the spoken word will be unnecessary in interpreting the story to theatre-goers. There will be sound effects and music, the latter written especially for the picture by a good composer, but dialogue will be out.

This is not entirely an innovation. Charlie Chaplin's latest picture, to be released soon, depends almost wholly on music and pantomime. His previous picture, made after talkies had come in, was of this type, too, and was tremendously successful. Eventually, no doubt, as the movie advances as an independent form of dramatic art, some dialogue will be used along with the sound effects and music, but it will be dialogue that fits unobtrusively into the whole and it will not detract from the effective pantomime.

FEDERAL RULE IN INDIA

With the promptly-given royal assent to the India Bill of the British Parliament, giving India a Constitution, a new experiment in limited self-government was commenced. India is to be a federation of provinces, with so much self-government in each as seems wise at present. The Central Government will control the army, finance, foreign affairs, and so on, for the security and stability of India. The machinery set up by Parliament for the creation of India's federal government has already begun to work. There will be elections early next year in what are now the British and Indian provinces, for the selection of new state legislatures and the creation of state governments.

It is believed, in informed quarters, that the whole system will be functioning completely in two and a half years. That will be a remarkable achievement. India is a land of 355,000,000 inhabitants, 225 languages, and many religions and castes. To get them all to co-operating, to insure protection of minorities, to satisfy Indian and British alike, will require great patience, skill and perseverance.

India is still short of the Dominion status some of her leaders demanded, but a good start has been made. Extension of the self-government now granted must come gradually, with experience.

WINE-USERS

Advocates of prohibition repeal had much to say about "light wines and beer." Once these beverages became legal and were readily available, it was thought, the drinkers would turn from whiskey and gin to the wines and beer. It has not worked that way. Explanations are now in order. So far, they are many and varied. One is that Americans are just naturally addicted to whiskey and gin; they are not wine-minded. Another is that they have never been educated about wines. They would like them and drink them if they knew more about how to use them. Still another is that prices for wines are prohibitive, and restrictions and red tape make them difficult to procure.

Confirmed drys will question whether, even if wines replaced whiskey and gin in popularity, our drinking standards would really be elevated. Alcohol is alcohol, they say, and drunkenness is drunkenness. Yet it is true that sipping a moderate amount of wine with a meal is less hard on the human nervous system than drinking immoderate quantities of stronger stuff at any and all times of day and night.

HAY FEVER SUFFERERS.

There are seasons when the sufferers from hay fever find that the symptoms are not so severe as in previous years and they naturally believe that their hay fever is gradually disappearing. The following year they find that the symptoms are more severe than ever before and their hope gives way to despair.

It is now generally known that the increase or decrease in the symptoms is due to the amount of pollen from the grass weed that is in the air. If the air is hot and dry there will be more pollen in the air than when it is cool and wet and so the symptoms depend upon the weather.

It is now generally agreed that the injection into the skin of vaccine made up from pollen is the best method of preventing attacks—although it fails in a great many cases. These injections should begin six or eight weeks before the regular onset of the symptoms.

However when the hay fever arrives something must be done to give the patient some relief. Going to districts where there is no grass pollen, an ocean trip, or the use of air filtered rooms or chambers a number of hours a day, are good methods of preventing symptoms but very few can take advantage of them.

When the symptoms are very severe, the lining of the nose so swollen that breathing through the nose is impossible, the application of a silver nitrate solution as prescribed by the family physician will relieve the symptoms for a short time.

The use of extract of the adrenal gland, which may be purchased under various trade names, is helpful to both the nose and the eyes. These extracts may be used in the form of drops in the eyes, or in the nose the liquid may be used as an spray, or combined in an ointment applied with the little finger as far upwards and backwards as possible.

Wearing dark glasses during the hay fever season is very restful to the eyes, and relieves the soreness to a considerable extent.

MORNING STAR

— BY MARIAN SIMS —

SYNOPSIS: Emily Felton, who has been sent to a boarding school, although she would rather go to Bryn Mawr, is told by her mother, Judith, that she must stay. Emily is told that she must stay, and she is told that she must stay. Emily is told that she must stay, and she is told that she must stay.

Chapter Three
 NEW LIFE

IT ended by Emily's producing linen and making the bed, while Judith unpacked frothy underwear and talked incessantly.

"I'm a lucky brute to draw a roommate like you," she said, throwing garments carelessly into a drawer. "I can see that you're the mothering kind."

Emily laughed. "Just the opposite. I've been thoroughly mothered all my life."

Judith grinned impishly. "Then that's where you learned the trick so well. Perhaps you'll be an example for me; I might even become reconciled to Ardmore."

"You didn't want to come here?" "Not much. It's the penalty for having the family intelligence. But I didn't mind enough to make an issue of it," she added.

Judith unpacked, and talked incessantly.

As she fell asleep that night Emily wondered what would have happened if she had "made an issue of it." The possibility of such a course had never occurred to her.

She wore for one week a large placard on her back, bearing her full name. She participated in the Freshman-Sophomore Stunt, which culminated in a truce and the ceremony of burying the hatchet.

After that she settled down to the routine of college: swiftly passing days of study; nights of soft beauty on the campus, when the moon silvered the roofs and etched the tower of Main in dark grace against the sky.

SHE made friends; not with the easy catholicity of Judith, but quietly and surely. She made the class tennis team, and found herself appointed to various minor offices delegated to freshmen. There was apparently a great deal more to college than books, and because she had promised Frances to do her best she took it all as it came.

Under Judith's expert tutelage she even learned to laugh heartily and often, and was amazed to discover how unimportant her troubles seemed so long as she dared to laugh at them.

She went home for week-ends twice a month, and on the last trip before Christmas took Judith with her. Jeffrey was entranced, but Frances thought her rather dangerously attractive and wondered if she wasn't a demoralizing influence for Emily.

Edwin eyed her with distrust, as one of the major planets entirely outside his orbit, and confided privately to Emily that he thought her frivolous.

Emily agreed promptly. "She is. But what a bore it would be if everyone did his duty and took life so seriously."

"Not half as boring as if every body took life as she does." Emily looked thoughtful. "I'm not so sure. Anyhow, I wish I were that way."

"I don't," Edwin told her firmly and significantly. "I like you much better as you are."

When the Easter holidays arrived Fair include many new people who have offered their services. Mrs. Ashley Cooper has consented to take charge of the refreshments to be served at the tea table on the fair grounds. Mrs. Cooper will be assisted by Mrs. Eugene Voshurch, and those who have enjoyed the excellent church supper at Shady, as well as those who patronized the tea service at the fair last year, will know how delicious the fare will be under this excellent management. Charles W. Travis has accepted the post of chairman of the grounds for the day of the fair (August 21). He will be the "big man" placing tables and banners, attending to the roping off of the orchestra platform, to parking arrangements, etc. Miss Patricia Wardwell will sell herbs. The Misses Anne Bellows and Jean Bellows will sell. Two Boy Scouts, Bill Brown and Karl Schuler, will direct the parking situation. The musical and

POLITICS at Random

By BYRON PRICE
 (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

THE public and private activities of Mr. Herbert Hoover are causing more discussion among the politicians than almost any other feature of the national political scene.

Whether or not it is indicative of their actual expectations, some of those in the inner Roosevelt circle at Washington have been offering even money or better that the former President will be renominated by the Republicans.

Among the Republicans themselves, a distinct cleavage on this subject grows more apparent constantly. There have been some warm private arguments between those who think Mr. Hoover has the best possible claim on the nomination and those who think that for the good of the party he should announce at once that he will not be a candidate.

His Chicago statement, challenging the Democrats to say exactly what they want to do about changing the constitution, has greatly enlivened the argument. It was interpreted almost universally as the nearest he has come thus far to actually bidding for leadership in 1936.

Hoover A Symbol

THIS is interesting for a reason which goes far beyond the personal fortunes of Mr. Hoover or any other individual.

Evidence Of Activity

SO FAR as a possible candidacy is concerned, there is no evidence Mr. Hoover has asked anyone to vote for him, or set in motion any

POLITICS at Random

By BYRON PRICE
 (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

THE public and private activities of Mr. Herbert Hoover are causing more discussion among the politicians than almost any other feature of the national political scene.

Whether or not it is indicative of their actual expectations, some of those in the inner Roosevelt circle at Washington have been offering even money or better that the former President will be renominated by the Republicans.

Among the Republicans themselves, a distinct cleavage on this subject grows more apparent constantly. There have been some warm private arguments between those who think Mr. Hoover has the best possible claim on the nomination and those who think that for the good of the party he should announce at once that he will not be a candidate.

His Chicago statement, challenging the Democrats to say exactly what they want to do about changing the constitution, has greatly enlivened the argument. It was interpreted almost universally as the nearest he has come thus far to actually bidding for leadership in 1936.

Hoover A Symbol

THIS is interesting for a reason which goes far beyond the personal fortunes of Mr. Hoover or any other individual.

Evidence Of Activity

SO FAR as a possible candidacy is concerned, there is no evidence Mr. Hoover has asked anyone to vote for him, or set in motion any Highland, Aug. 16.—On August 18, members of Court Nolan, C. D. of A. will visit Greymore and Maryknoll located at Ossining and Garrison.

Those who wish to go are to notify the Misses Luella Ose, Daisy Hackstetter, Mrs. Caroline Ose, Minnie Dillmore or Mrs. Frances Pampinella. The start is to be made from Eastman park, Poughkeepsie, at 11 o'clock. The court decided at their meeting Wednesday night to institute a Junior Court in September, and Miss Rose Patti is the leader.

On September 14 a victory dinner will be tendered the state regent, Mrs. Margaret Truan of Poughkeepsie. This will be at 6 o'clock at the McConnell farm at Cairo and reservations are to be made to Mrs. Vincent Gaffney before August 28.

The committee to entertain for September are Mrs. Mary Scott, Mrs. Katherine Patti, Mrs. Rose Patti, Mrs. Anna Shay, Mrs. John J. Gaffney, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sidel and son, and Mrs. Mabel Hasbrouck left Thursday morning for Albany to spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Davis.

Talks to Parents

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Much gossip is comparatively idle and harmless. It is, however, the average town would be a collection of individuals each one at loggerheads with all the others, and reputations would all be in shreds.

The great majority of people hearing malicious comments about their friends or even their enemies, discount the statements or disregard them entirely; furthermore, society has learned to be careful in what it says one about another, since a comeback, and probably an unpleasant one, is always possible.

But when it comes to spreading rumors about children, and especially girls and boys in their teens, there are few if any limitations to what people can and will say. They seem to feel that it does not matter. If they think at all of the consequences, they suppose that the child will outgrow it or live it down. More than one girl or boy, living in a small community, has either left town to get a new start among strange faces, or has given up the fight and become what he was credited with being. Give a boy a bad name and you might as well hang him.

Mrs. X tells Mrs. Y that Mary is not a good influence for the other children. She knows so much, and is so frank. "Really, someone ought to speak to her mother." Mrs. Y has a child of her own who is Mary's closest friend. Instead of speaking to Mary's mother or looking into the matter herself she breaks up the children's friendship. Mary never knows why. She is probably no different from other girls, only a little less reserved. Gradually she is pushed out of the group and, bewildered and unhappy, thrown on her own resources. She has no defense, no chance to answer her accusers. Mrs. X may be a well-meaning woman, but her tongue was far more dangerous than Mary's.

WASHINGTON — The legislative session always assumes major importance in the closing days of congress, but as the present greeling session limps toward adjournment it has emerged as the most powerful factor in operation on Capitol Hill.

With administration leaders "hopeful" and the rank and file of members prayerful that adjournment is in sight, the bulk of the most important legislation considered by the congress rests in conference. It's up to a small group of members of both houses to decide the fate of measures debated and fought over for months.

The banking bill, the utility hold-in company bill, AAA amendments, TVA amendments, the social security bill—to mention only a few—are in conference where desperate efforts are being made to iron out disagreements between two versions of the same bill as passed by the senate and house.

Norris Fights Conference

THIS row precipitated by house conferees on the banking company bill as to whether the proposed Benjamin Cohen, chairman, and one of the authors of the measure, should be permitted to sit in on the conference as an adviser to conferees has focused popular attention on this legislative institution and its workings as never before.

Doing Tricks

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE cat had disappeared as quickly as he had appeared. The magician laughed at the surprise of the duck and crow and Willy Nilly.

"I've been practicing a great many new tricks and brushing up on some of the old ones," said the magician. "I'm leaving this house within a short time to go on a world tour. I've sold the place and I'm getting ready to go now, packing slowly so as not to be too much rushed."

"I suppose you couldn't do me another favor?" asked Willy Nilly.

"I haven't done you any favor at all," replied the magician. "I'm afraid you'll have to have some treatment that is other than a trick for your ears."

"Yes," agreed Willy Nilly. "I'll start in using the adhesive tape again. But I wondered if you wouldn't come over with me to Puddle Muddle and give a show, like a dress rehearsal, for my animal friends?"

"We've had many important visitors in Puddle Muddle, and I could drive you over there in my automobile two ways."

"That would be splendid," the magician replied. "I'd like to go over all my tricks once before I leave, and there is nothing like an audience. I'll come at once."

So they all got into the automobile.

Willy Nilly and back they started for Puddle Muddle.

But he would not tell how these were done. "I'm not a magician if I don't surprise and amaze people," he said.

Now they were arriving in Puddle Muddle. "Do the ear trick first," Willy Nilly whispered.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

What! No Spinach?
Chicago—Edward Swinski was brought to court on complaint of two relief workers, who charged he kept them in his home more than two hours for a lecture against their insistence that his two year old son needed a special diet, including spaghetti.

Swinski told Judge Frank Padden, "It's a terrible situation, Judge. Under the constitution I think I have a right to bring up my son to be something better than a spaghetti eater."

You Can't Satisfy Everyone.
Aberdeen, S. D.—While Aberdeen was sweltering in the season's highest temperature—107 degrees—yesterday a summer cold wave struck across the Canadian border. Calgary reported the mercury dived to from 4 to 10 degrees below the freezing point in the High river district of southern Alberta.

They Got Bargains, Too.
Chicago—More than half the crowd of 1,000 who attended the annual auction of the Chicago police department yesterday were youngsters. The word got around that there was an unusually large number of stolen bicycles included in the stuff to be auctioned off. The police explained that few owners of "bikes" have any way of identifying them.

Haste Makes Irony.
Council Bluffs, Iowa—Miss Pearl

Stein of Des Moines, was hurrying to Council Bluffs with an artificial leg for her uncle. Motor trouble developed near Oakland, Iowa. While Miss Stein was pushing her car to the side of the road, a passing motorist struck her and fractured her leg.

Curb Service.
Pueblo, Colo.—Frank H. Frazier's car caught fire and, though it contained inflammable paint as well as gasoline, he drove it to a nearby fire station and parked it at the curb. Firemen turned a hose on the flames and extinguished them quickly. Frazier's arm was blistered.

The License Didn't Get Away.
Portland, Ore.—A thief stole George Imboden's entire fishing tackle kit but apparently didn't care to have a case of mistaken identity on his mind. Imboden's fishing license was returned in the next mail.

Sneeze Power.
Seattle, Wash.—When it started Vern Arnett, 14, twitched his upper lip and wrinkled his nose just as in an ordinary sneeze, but when it actually happened a vertebra in his neck was dislocated. Vern fainted from pain as he tried to telephone, but the operator, sensing something amiss, called deputy sheriff who gave first aid.

FREE LEGAL ADVICE
BOOSTS MEAT SALES

Budapest (AP)—Business was terrible in Ignaz Lajos' butcher shop until he hit the idea of giving free legal advice with every string of frankfurters or pound of pork chops.

The scheme was suggested to him by the plight of a lawyer whose business was even worse off than his own. He offered the lawyer three pounds of meat and a penny (about $1) in cash daily. If he would consent to the cash register and counsel any of his customers who had need of advice.

Now Lajos has many new customers and his old customers, freed of legal worries, are developing bigger appetites for meat.

Vast Reclamation Project May Save Fertile Lands In California's Valleys

By L. S. KIMBALL
Sacramento, Calif. (AP)—A cure for a creeping desert paralysis threatening the fertility of rich farm lands in California's 400-mile long central valleys, the Sacramento and San Joaquin, may be attempted by Uncle Sam in another vast reclamation project.

A dream of engineers and agriculturists for two decades, it is the Central Valley's water and power project for control and utilization of the floods which pour down upon these valleys as spring thaws the snow-packed Sierra Nevada and Cascade mountain ranges.

Five Years Needed
If approved by President Roosevelt, this $170,000,000 enterprise would become the fourth unit in a series of national public works in the west. The others are Boulder and Grand Coulee dams and the San Francisco-Oakland bridge.

The President has approved the spending program of the federal reclamation bureau, under which it would be built, but final acceptance of the work program is pending Reports from Washington indicate the President may allot $20,000,000 for a year's work on the California project. Engineers say it could be built in five years.

Some rich farm and industrial sections have been invaded by salt water tides from the Pacific, while water shortages threaten other valley areas with a return to desert.

May Form 12,000-Acre Lake
The solution proposed by engineers is to build a series of dams, canals and pumping stations, which would be expected to put the right amount of water in the right place at the right time.

At the northern end of the Sacramento valley, near Redding, a 420-foot high dam would be constructed, costing $84,000,000 and storing 3,000,000 acre feet of water. It would back a 23,000-acre lake into the mountains and be known as Kennett dam.

Near the southern end of the San Joaquin valley, which lies below the Sacramento area, a 250-foot high dam would be built east of Fresno, just across the mountains from Mt. Whitney. It would cost about $13,500,000, would impound 400,000 acre feet of water, and would be called Friant dam.

Some people are in trouble on account of their debts, others are in debt on account of their troubles.

Maid—I'm going a-milking, sir.

Visitor—But why all the tools, my pretty maid?

Maid—Trouble with that darn milking machine again.

FREE LEGAL ADVICE
BOOSTS MEAT SALES

Budapest (AP)—Business was terrible in Ignaz Lajos' butcher shop until he hit the idea of giving free legal advice with every string of frankfurters or pound of pork chops.

The scheme was suggested to him by the plight of a lawyer whose business was even worse off than his own. He offered the lawyer three pounds of meat and a penny (about $1) in cash daily. If he would consent to the cash register and counsel any of his customers who had need of advice.

Now Lajos has many new customers and his old customers, freed of legal worries, are developing bigger appetites for meat.

Dam and Canal System May Harness Flood Waters

This rugged country in northern California would be turned into a reservoir by Kennett dam, if the Central Valley's water and power project is approved by the federal government. The picture was taken a short distance above the proposed dam site which may be located on the relief map at the left. The map shows the broad outlines of the project with its canals, Kennett and Friant dams and the relationship to Boulder dam.

Better River Navigation

From these two dams sufficient water would be released to permit greater navigation of California's two large rivers, the Sacramento and San Joaquin, and prevent a waste of spring waters into the ocean each spring.

This controlled release of water would provide enough river current the year around, engineers say, to prevent salt water tides from backing up into the rivers from San Francisco bay, damaging great industrial plants in Suisun bay and eroding the rich delta agricultural lands between Stockton and Sacramento.

355 Miles of Canals
The third unit in the project would be a series of canals 335 miles long. A 150-mile section, costing $14,000,000, would transfer part of the waters of the Sacramento river into San Joaquin valley, watering 400,000 acres threatened with aridity. Into this same area also would be pumped other water supplies from Friant dam through 185 miles of canals stretching from Bakersfield to Madera. These other sections would cost $29,000,000.

The fourth step would embrace the stringing of power transmission lines from Kennett dam to the Contra Costa section, near Suisun bay, through which, engineers say, 1,300,000,000 kilowatt-hours of power could be sent annually. The construction cost would be $14,000,000.

Nazis Revive Chest Carving.
Berlin (AP)—To help unemployed wood carvers, a Nazi drive has been started to repopularize the carved clothes chests of bygone days. Every German household is urged to get such a chest for its keepers.

Duke Pays Fine For Selling Part Of Own Mansion

Paris (AP)—France's archeological treasures are vigilantly guarded by the ministry of fine arts, as the Duke de Bauffremont found to his cost.

The duke possesses a fine 18th century mansion in the aristocratic Faubourg St. Germain quarter. It had been classed by the ministry as a historical monument.

Owners of such buildings cannot, under the law, change or modify them in any way without express permission, but the duke disregarding this obligation, sold the magnificent carved wood paneling from one of the salons to an antiquary for $4,000.

For this he was haled before the Correctional Court. His plea that the paneling was furniture was rejected by the court which fined the noble owner and the antiquary 50 francs, or $23.33 each, and ordered them to put the paneling back.

Bobby Linsig Reaches His Sixth Month Today

Marlborough, N. Y., Aug. 16 (AP).—“Bobby” Linsig, only child in recent medical history to survive without an esophagus, reached the halfway mark of his first year of life today and celebrated by tipping the scales at an even 17 pounds.

“He is happy and healthy,” his mother said enthusiastically. “He acts just like any normal child his age.”

“His latest trick is a lusty about and he is doing a lot of kicking.”

The child was born last February 16, without the main food passage from the mouth to the stomach and for a time physicians and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Linsig, despaired of his life. He then weighed 6½ pounds.

An incision was made in the outside wall of the stomach, however, and “Bobby” thrived on milk fed through a rubber tube.

Now, the child receives cereal twice a day through the tube and has vegetables and orange juice once daily in addition to his regular feeding of milk.

“He sleeps any old way,” Mrs. Linsig said. “Sometimes I put him on his stomach and sometimes I put him on his back but he sleeps through from 10 o’clock to six o’clock without a murmur.”

“Bobby” has a long sun bath every day and can almost sit up by himself. His mother now props him up with a couple of pillows but she hopes to discard the supports within a few days.

If the child continues to develop, physicians hope to operate and construct an artificial esophagus.

Scarlet fever was first accurately described by Sydenham in 1676, before which time it had been confused with smallpox and measles.

PREVIEWED
Today
Broadway: "Paris in Spring."
All about love in a Parisian setting wherein two lovers quarrel, become misunderstood, get into mix-ups, only to have all their difficulties smoothed out by the wiser and older head of Grandma. The tunes in this play are soothing and romantic, and the lovely voice of Mary Ellis is a highlight of the play. Tullio Carmichael is also well cast as a temperamental Latin, and James Blakely and Ira Lupino are excellent in featured roles. The comedy relief is supplied by Lynne Overman. There is little plot to this talkie, but the acting and the music makes it pleasant entertainment.

Orpheum: "Love in Bloom" and "Under the Pampas Moon." Dixie Lee, Joe Morrison, George Burns and Gracie Allen are the four featured players in the opening feature, a show alive with catchy songs and some grand comedy moments. "Under the Pampas Moon" is Warner Baxter's latest starring vehicle, a show that has moments of greatness as it tells of an Argentine gaucho who gets tangled up with a sophisticated world he never knew existed. Ketti Gallien, a newcomer to the screen, is beautiful but has little to do in this film.

Kingston: Same.
Kingston: "Ginger" and "Headline Woman." Jane Withers who almost steals away from Shirley Temple, is starred for the first time in the opening Kingston feature, and it is a show one would travel far to see. In other words, Miss Withers gives a completely inspired performance as a little girl from the slums who steps into a Park avenue home while her relative is spending some time in jail, and who humanizes the people of the social register with her charm and her naturalness. Jackie Searl, Katherine Alexander, O. P. Heggie and Walter King are featured. A don't miss comedy attraction, "Headline Woman" is a newspaper yarn that moves swiftly through a murder and the usual Hollywood idea is disclosed how a newspaper reporter works to get his story. Tomorrow
Broadway: "Curly Top." Proving her versatility with songs and dancing, Little Shirley Temple, now on vacation in Hawaii, rings up another triumph in this, her latest flicker that is her show from the opening tick of the camera. Although the plot is trite, Miss Temple is at her best in the mediocre story for it gives her every opportunity to show how simple it is to make a success of any motion picture in which she appears. John Boles and Rochelle Hudson provide the necessary love interest and Jane Darwell is featured. This is a gay, sparkling little show, made worth seeing through the surprising genius of Shirley Temple. A picture for the whole family to see and enjoy.

Orpheum: Same.
Kingston: "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." The finest comic on the screen today has a story tailored exclusively to his measure in this hit comedy, and the pantomime and genuine ability of W. C. Fields to perform miracles in humor was never more clearly demonstrated than in this tale of a meek little man of the Caspar Milquetoast variety who gets up enough nerve to attend a wrestling match. This play has everything to make it a real success and the fine support of Kathleen Howard and Mary Brian is invaluable. As it is, the show is a distinct hit, one of the best of the current comedy dramas, and W. C. Fields proves himself to be the outstanding comedian before the cameras at the present time.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

HOLLYWOOD—When she was 14 Marsha Hunt tried to be a movie actress—very quietly—and was rebuffed. She made up her mind she would not try again until she had followed that eastern casting director's advice and "grown ripe." But today, at 17, Marsha is in the movies, and as interesting a combination of poise, smartness and naivete as ever faced a camera. No newcomer in recent years has had a screen test that aroused more interest than hers. She might be taken for a young woman of 21.

Her story, briefly, is that of a girl who always wanted to go on the stage, who has had advantages, who has planned a career with much care.

Not Interested?

She had a year at a New York acting school—one which stressed actual performance rather than vowels and elocution—and she was planning to continue at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London this year. But first she came to visit her uncle in Los Angeles. Because she had posed for commercial advertising in New York, there was considerable surprise in Hollywood when she said firmly that she was not interested in movies.

"I still remembered my earlier experience," she says, "and I was determined to wait until I had something to offer besides ambition."

But her first screen test set the Paramount people raving. Some said "another Hepburn," others "another Lillian Gish." Both comments, of course, dismay her, although she expected the Gish comparison. Back in New York people used to point out her resemblance to the former Griffith star who now is on the stage. No actress—especially a very young one—wants to be "compared" to another established actress. Miss Hunt, however, is not likely to suffer through this resemblance. She is decidedly individual.

First Role Set
Marsha's first role is to be the ingenue in "The Virginia Judge." She expects she will continue to play "sweet young things" for a while, even though "there is nothing so uninteresting to do."
"I don't say that I'm better equipped for comedy or drama," she explains earnestly, "but I do say they are decidedly more interesting."

The National Association of Audubon Societies, with the support and encouragement of the New Jersey Audubon Society, has established at Cape May Point, N. J., an emergency landing field for migrant birds and an inviolate sanctuary for all forms of wildlife. In honor of Dr. Witmer Stone of Philadelphia, distinguished ornithologist, who has made a life-long study of the birds and plants of the region, and has endeavored himself to the community, the new sanctuary has been appropriately named the Witmer Stone Wildlife Sanctuary.

STATE TRAINING SCHOOL
TO BEGIN ABOUT SEPT. 1

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 16 (AP).—A training school reaching thousands of parents and children throughout New York state, providing employment for hundreds of teachers and fitting a large number of other young women to earn a livelihood is proposed under an emergency nursery school and parent-education project sent to Washington today by the state Works Progress Administration.

With a nucleus of the program already in operation under the TEPA, it is expected the entire project will be underway by September 1 if federal approval is obtained.

"Scotland Yard" Gets Under Way In State

By MAJOR JOHN A. WARNER
Supt., New York State Police
Albany, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—Work quietly, get there quickly and never give up a case until every possible lead has been followed to a conclusion.

These are my instructions to every member of the newly created bureau of investigation of the New York State Police, known as "Scotland Yard."

So far the results obtained by the bureau are highly satisfactory. Here is an example:

A teletype message dated April 11 from the chief of police of Little Falls, N. Y., advised that John Ober, a night watchman of the Gilbert Mills in that city, was found murdered. A watch was missing from his person. Careful tracing of this victim's watch revealed that it had been recently repaired by a local jeweler, and from that source the movement number was obtained. On July 10 a short message flashed over the teletype lines reading: "Cancel message 14, file 12, from the police department, Little Falls, N. Y., as the murderer has been apprehended by troop D's bureau of identification."

The crime was solved through detailed procedure we would rather not reveal; is it not sufficient that we have accomplished the results?

This is indicative of the manner in which the inquiring young men of "Scotland Yard" handle their assignments. No blare of trumpets or parade of brass bands; just quiet, persistent and sensible methods with no braggadocio statements concerning their accomplishments.

In all parts of the state the bureau has "scored." The Glenn case at Greenville, closed in three days, with the man who killed a child behind bars; the murder of a steam shovel operator at Cold Spring solved within a comparatively few hours; the apprehension of a "cop" killer at Warwick who, when resisting, was necessarily shot and killed, all indicate the efficiency with which the bureau is already functioning.

Created on May 4, 1935, it is yet scarcely three months old, yet it bears out the theory that such an organization may immediately function successfully if it is composed of experienced personnel. All of its members are young but they are veterans of the state police service and bring to it a continuation of the splendid ideals and traditions of the troopers organization. This fall, when conditions permit, the members of the bureau will attend a special course at the New York state school for police in Troy, N. Y. This course will relate to criminal investigation, technical and scientific aids for such investigations, and a general round table discussion of various cases handled by the bureau during the months immediately preceding the course.

Lying a short distance off the Maine shore, in Muscongus Bay, between Damariscotta and Waldoboro, is a beautiful little island about one and a half miles long, thickly covered with a primeval stand of spruce and with wet moss. Due to the generosity of Dr. Millicent Todd Bingham of Medford, Maine, and of Dr. James M. Todd of Boothbay Harbor, Maine, the National Association of Audubon Societies will establish on this island the Todd Wildlife Sanctuary and will preserve inviolate all of its natural features.

CLARENCE D. MARTIN

The Governor of Washington, Clarence D. Martin, was a small-town miller and banker, when the 1922 Democratic landslide swept him into office. Cheney (pop. 1,200), in eastern Washington, retained him as its third-term mayor even after his election to the governorship. Tall, spare, just past 40 years old, he wears front-buttoned evening clothes or a silk hat and falls with equal aplomb; affects a Charlie Chaplin mustache and gold-rimmed eyes; glances and likes airplane travel. "Call me 'Boltar,'" he told newsmen when they first addressed him as "Your Excellency." "Boltar" was his boyhood nickname, because of his worship for Simon Boltar, the South American liberator. He is married and has three sons, William, Don and Frank.

FLORIDA SORGHUM CANE BOASTS AFRICAN SUGAR.

Durban, So. Africa (AP).—Sugar cane crossed with sorghum, newly introduced in South Africa, is yielding surprising results here. Returns from a typical field have risen from 27.73 tons to 39.53 tons per acre. In the past, almost the entire South African output was cane, other varieties having been prohibited until 1930.

But thanks to the collection of new strains from all parts of the world, including some United States government experiment stations in Florida, Natal planters now believe that the South African production will reach 600,000 tons compared to the previous record of 391,000 tons.

INSURE NOW, BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE

British Delay Transatlantic Airmail

London Soothsayers Pick Next Summer For Test Flights

By ALBERT W. WILSON

London (AP).—British government tests for inauguration of a North Atlantic air service will be launched in the summer of 1936 with a new type of machine called a "mail composite" plane, it is predicted by well-informed sources here.

Regular service may be expected within three years. This may seem a long time, but it is the most optimistic prediction ventured by those in position to know the status of negotiations now under way between the government and Imperial Airways.

Plane's Secrets Leak

Considerable money already has been spent in developing the mail composite plane. Despite secrecy which surrounds this work, a few details regarding the machine have been confirmed by reliable sources. It is a small two-engine machine, designed for heavy wing loading.

Unable to take off on its own power, this plane is to be loaded on a large machine and "dumped" in the air at an adequate altitude.

Thus is expected to be solved the great problem which has thus far made a transatlantic service impossible—the problem of balancing costs with a "pay-load."

American Line Interested

It is admitted that bigger planes must be built for passenger service. Another summer has brought the usual flood of announcements of various companies planning such service within anywhere from a few weeks to a few months. But British experts and foreign observers agree that Imperial Airways, because it has government backing, and the Pan-American Airways, because it has a binding agreement with the Transatlantic airmail service over the route shown on the map is being planned in London for joint American and English operation. The sketch is an artist's conception of how the British intend to launch in the air a new secret mail carrier by "dumping" it from a transport machine.

British company, will be the joint operators when the service becomes a reality.

Imperial Airways is in the advantageous position of carrying on its work with the assistance of the government. Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, the air minister, revealed in the house of commons recently that the government is actively pursuing negotiations.

The British government has the upper hand because it controls the main key stations along the two possible routes, in Newfoundland and Bermuda.

SOUTH RONDOUT

South Rondout, Aug. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Rydstedt and daughters, Alma and Delores, and son, Alfred, have returned to their home in Springfield Gardens, after spending the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stengel.

Mrs. John Stoult visited her sister, Mrs. Peter Ries, of Kingston on Sunday.

Many branches from the trees fell and some wires were down causing the residents of the village to be without electricity for a couple of hours on Tuesday evening during the storm.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Neill and nephew, Philip Lawler, Jr., of Hoboken, N. J., are spending the week in Connelly heights with Mrs. Barbara Lawler.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dunn of Ridge-wood, N. J., are spending a few days at the Dunn homestead on Connelly heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Webster of Connelly heights, Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Dopach and daughter, Martha, of New York, enjoyed a motor trip to Jefferson, Delaware county, and spent the day with friends.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Gebhard and family of Margaretville were callers in the village on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Dopach and daughter, Martha, and Mrs. Fred Webster, spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bush at Maple Lane Farm.

Friends of Paul Barnum will be glad to hear that after three weeks he is able to leave the Kingston Hospital. He has been suffering from blood poisoning in his left hand.

June Maurer has returned home from spending a few days at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Maurer and family of Teaneck, N. J.

Mrs. Charles Wesley and daughter, Lillian, of Port Ewen, spent Wednesday afternoon with her mother-in-law, Mrs. James Wesley.

Miss Martha Dopach has returned to her home in New York, after spending two weeks with her cousin, Mrs. Fred Webster, of Connelly heights.

There will be no church services on Sunday as the Rev. Mr. Chandler is on vacation, but Sunday School at the usual time of 9:45 a. m.

Irene Johndreau is spending her vacation in Massachusetts visiting friends.

In no part of America has the language of early Scotland, Ireland and England been so well preserved as in the Southern Appalachians.

STREICHER REVIEWS ANTI-SEMITIC DRIVE

Jews throughout Germany were alarmed as Julius Streicher, relentless anti-Semitic crusader, reviewed the month old Nazi drive against them in an address at Berlin. Scene above shows Streicher and the huge hall where he spoke. Fear was held that the fiery Berlin publisher would excite further anti-Jewish fervor. (Associated Press Photos)

Jon Lindbergh Enjoys His Third Birthday; Asters Proud Parents

North Haven, Me., Aug. 16 (AP)—Little Jon Lindbergh had a birthday party today in the guarded privacy of his grandmother's summer estate on this island in Penobscot Bay. He is 3 years old.

His father and mother, Col. Charles A. and Anne Morrow Lindbergh, were at the party; so was his Aunt Constance Morrow, and his grandmother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, widow of the U. S. Senator from New Jersey.

Apparently Jon had few child guests. Two children, about his own age, have been seen recently around the secluded Morrow estate, and it was assumed by islanders they would be there for the birthday.

Only a few days ago, Mrs. Lindbergh did some shopping for the occasion at the island store. She bought a box of paints, a small pocket comb, and a few other trinkets.

The same anxious efforts to shield Jon from publicity that has marked the Lindberghs' movements since his brother, Charles, Jr., was killed, were evident today.

Residents of this little island, wholly in sympathy with the Lindberghs' desires, were just as reluctant to talk about the famous child.

Astors are Happy
New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—John Jacob Astor and his wife, the former Ellen Tuck French, are as proud of their first baby as any normal young parents, Nancy Randolph said today in a dispatch to the News from Newport, R. I.

The baby, a month old next Monday, posed for pictures on the lawn of the Astor Newport home after being bribed with a bottle of plain water.

Astor said: "He looks exactly like his mother."

Mrs. Astor said: "Oh, no, darling. It's you he really looks like. His head's shaped exactly like yours."

"Well," replied Astor, "hope he isn't going to look too much like me. I'd rather he looked like you."

Astor said the baby would be christened William, probably not before October 1.

Joel Chandler Harris, author of many tales of negro folklore, wrote 40 volumes. He was a native of Georgia.

Are you serving a MINUS MEAL?

Many wives unknowingly serve "minus meals." The food is well cooked. But it has little or no "bulk"—needed for regular habits.

"Minus meals" frequently cause common constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in the diet. Broccoli, low of appetite and dull, spiritless days too often follow.

Correct the "minus meal" by serving Kellogg's All-Bran regularly. Its gentle "bulk" does not break down in the body as much as the fiber in fruits and vegetables. So it is more effective. All-Bran also supplies vitamins B and iron.

Certainly it is safer to use this natural food in place of patent medicines. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. Chronic constipation with each meal. If relief is not obtained, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads, waffles, etc. Get the red and green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Streicher Lashes Out Against German Foes

Berlin, Aug. 16 (AP)—A more intensive phase of the Nazi anti-Semitism drive was foreseen today for Germany on the basis of Julius Streicher's denunciation of Jewry as the nation's racial economic betrayers.

Most ruthless of anti-Semites, Streicher whipped thousands of hearers to fervor when, in addresses before two mass meetings last night, he assailed Jews, the foreign press, bolshevism and the Catholic baptism of Jews.

All of these, he implied, were linked with an anti-German plot.

Despite the ballyhoo that preceded the speeches of the Nurnberg publisher of the anti-Semitic Der Sturmer and which led to fear of new outbreaks, his visit was unattended by disorder.

Jews, warned by their leaders, kept to their homes, while Storm Troops and police patrolled the streets until daylight.

The only open resentment was shown by Americans, who were astounded by a direct reference to a member of the family of United States Ambassador William E. Dodd.

Americans in the audience expressed the opinion the remark "wouldn't go unnoticed in diplomatic circles."

Streicher, known as the Czar of Franconia, was vigorously outspoken in his advocacy of "steps against the racial disgrace of mixed marriages" between Jews and Aryans.

"We are proceeding into a great German future," he said, "which will again save all humanity from the Jewish race."

No specific plan for future Jewish restrictions was outlined by Streicher.

He spoke for two and a half hours in the Sportpalast, and then rushed to the Tennisstade to harangue an overflow crowd, which had heard the first speech through loudspeakers.

In denouncing the foreign press reports of anti-Jewish disturbances, Streicher demanded that the press report "lynch justice in America."

His reference to a member of Dodd's family was made in his comment on the leading of a woman through the streets placarded "racial traitor."

Licenses Revoked And Suspended

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 15—Seven hundred and fifteen certificates of automobile registration and licenses to drive were revoked or suspended by the commissioner of motor vehicles during the three weeks ended August 3. Of these cases 313 will require proof of financial responsibility before applications for new licenses will be considered. There were 52 revocations and 349 suspensions in New York city and vicinity, and 144 revocations and 175 suspensions in other parts of the state.

In the Albany district there were 24 revocations and 45 suspensions. Drivers of this vicinity affected by the order of the commissioner were as follows:

Revocations
Driving while intoxicated—John J. Miskins, Lake Katrine; Kenneth J. Marline, 84 Hoffman street, Kingston; Royal Carl, R. F. D., Box 176, Saugerties.

Suspensions
Reckless driving—Harry Goshel, 145 Hasbrouck avenue, Kingston.
Carrying passengers without valid bond—Wilson D. Markie, Hurley.

Food Required by Snakes

The majority of snakes in captivity use live animals for food, and the kind of animals to be given depends on the size of the snake. Small garter snakes, black snakes and similar species thrive on crickets, beetles, small frogs, mice and the like. Bull snakes, pine snakes, rattlesnakes and other large-sized American species eat toads, frogs, mice and domestic poultry, hares, muskrats and very large snakes eat rats, guinea pigs, rabbits or other fairly good sized animals.

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 16 (AP)—Lester W. Herzog, state WPA administrator, was given a free hand today in the allotment of $1,000,000 for flood relief projects in south-central New York as a new flood control council swung into action in the area. The new council was formed here yesterday shortly before Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins gave Herzog the word to go ahead with specific projects under the $1,000,000 relief fund. Hopkins' statement was in reply to reports that federal government red tape was holding up post flood reconstruction. "Herzog knows what to do with the money, all right," Hopkins said at his Washington press conference.

Next Conference At Saratoga Springs

these benefits today, the report stated, and such benefits are available to a greater degree in the large cities. For the benefit of the conference such benefits should be extended as quickly as possible to the smaller communities.

Thanks To Kingston.
The resolutions of thanks adopted by the Conference in appreciation of the hospitality shown by the "good people of Kingston," which made their stay in this city a most delightful one which will live long in their memories, extended the grateful thanks of the Conference. Mayor C. J. Heiseleman and the members of his official family were thanked for conferring the freedom of the city on the Conference members and for the arrangement of a most entertaining program. Senator Wicks and Assemblyman J. Edward Conway were thanked for the friendship displayed during the legislative session and for their hospitality during the conference.

Thanks were also extended to Robert K. Hancock of The Freeman and Ira V. D. Warren of The Leader for their effective recording of the proceedings of the convention and to their representatives for their most courteous and helpful articles, reflecting a splendid spirit of hospitality. The thanks of the Conference were also extended to Raymond R. Gross, manager of the Governor Clinton Hotel, and to the managers of the other Kingston hotels for the consideration and service shown to all the delegates, also to the fraternal, business and civic organizations and to the people of Kingston, and the Kingston Patrolmen's Association and its president, Peter Keresman, who acted as official hosts to the convention for their thorough preparation for the event and the carrying out of the program without a single hitch.

"We leave Kingston with a most pleasant memory of your cooperation and your consideration," said the resolution.

Conference Ends.
The business session this morning brought the tenth annual conference to an official close.

This afternoon the delegates left for their homes.

The local police association worked hard to make the conference the success that it proved to be, and their efforts were appreciated as shown by the resolutions unanimously adopted by the conference just before it adjourned.

Draft Crime Program.

One of the most important matters taken up at the conference was the discussion of crime prevention and the conference authorized its legislative committee to draft a program to be submitted to the crime commission appointed by Governor Lehman at its meeting in October.

The members of the legislative committee are Joseph P. Moran of New York, Frank J. Carr of Buffalo, Peter Keresman of Kingston and Thomas P. Cummings of New York.

Mr. Cummings will represent the conference on the crime commission, having been appointed to the commission by Governor Lehman.

The program has already been drafted and approved by the conference but will not be made public until after its submission to the crime commission in October.

At Golden Rule Inn.

Following the baseball game between Newburgh and Kingston with the Hill City cops on the long end of the score, the players and the delegates to the New York State Police Conference motored to Golden Rule Inn where a chicken dinner was served to about 300.

Mayor Marvin Here.

The delegation of Syracuse police is making a strong bid for the convention in 1936 and Mayor Marvin of that city, who had been in New York, stopped over in Kingston yesterday afternoon and attended the dinner last night where he spoke briefly, and told the delegates that if they chose Syracuse for next year that they would not regret it, and he personally would assure the boys of a good time.

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood presided as toastmaster at the dinner and said it was an honor to have three mayors present at the dinner. Mayor Heiseleman of Kingston, Mayor Marvin of Syracuse and Mayor Brown of Newburgh.

Thanks Well of Cops.
Mayor Heiseleman spoke briefly and said that what Kingston thought of its police force was the fact that while he had cut down the operating costs of government in Kingston and reduced the tax rate that the pay of policemen had not been reduced.

Mayor Marvin said it was a pleasure to meet with the police and assured them if they accepted the invitation Syracuse was extending them to meet there in 1936 that they would not regret it.

Mayor Brown spoke briefly of the good fellowship that prevailed between the police of Newburgh and Kingston and of the police games played by the teams of the two departments and of the feeling of good will that existed between these neighboring cities.

Harry H. Flemming of this city spoke briefly and said that in Kingston the police force was not a political issue. "We have had our police chief for 27 years," he said in emphasizing that point.

Chief of Police Brown of Newburgh extended the greetings of the Newburgh police.

Made for the dinner was furnished by the "Dorothy Dwellers" who made the trip in an auto truck, and by the Inn orchestra.

All of the talks at the dinner were brief as the convention committee had arranged to have the party at the Inn break up in time so that the delegates could attend the American Legion banquets.

Program at Franklin St. Church.
The Hudson River Region, Federation of Women's Clubs, will present a program at the Franklin Street M. E. Church on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. C. G. Gussner of Hudson will be the guest speaker.

Rogers, Post Dead After Plane Crash

Before leaving Fairbanks last night, Rogers said he hadn't decided.

Two days ago in Anchorage Rogers said he planned to spend the winter in Alaska with "Sourdoughs" denuded in their cabins along the Yukon and Mackenzie rivers.

Post said he had not determined his route after the Point Barrow flight, but he made inquiries concerning airplane landing fields in Western Alaska and Siberia.

Post's plane was a new one, built at Burbank, Calif., for the flight to Siberia. It was a specially built model of low wing construction similar to the ship used by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh on their flight to Japan in 1931 and across the Atlantic in routes in 1933.

Flown to Seattle as land plane, the ship was fitted with pontoons here.

Post arrived here from the south on August 1, accompanied by Mrs. Post, who had planned to make a Siberian trip with her husband.

Moscow Bound.

He said he planned to go on to Moscow, after "hunting tigers" in Siberia.

Rogers, freed from his moving picture work for a time, then flew north and joined them here on August 5. He left Los Angeles under an assumed name but his identity was soon discovered and he was welcomed here.

On the next day, the two took test flights in Post's plane, which had then been equipped with pontoons, and Rogers also found time for a polo workout with polo players here. He was their guest that evening and told them, among other things, that he was going to "get a polo team going on the Matanuska project," as that was about the "only thing the Democrats haven't done for the colony."

Not For a Lady.

That evening, friends disclosed later, Rogers "kidded" Mrs. Post about the hunting and fishing they planned on isolated Alaskan lakes, saying it was "no place for a lady."

The next morning, Aug. 7, when the two hopped from the Renton airport of Lake Washington, south of here, Mrs. Post was left behind. She said the trip might be "too strenuous."

She remained here only a few days, and then flew south in a private plane to San Francisco.

Post and Rogers made a leisurely flight of eight hours, 15 minutes, that day to Juneau, not stopping at Ketchikan, although before leaving here Rogers had said he might have to "get a fish dinner at Ketchikan." Rain and low-lying clouds lay along the route they traveled, but they arrived safely at the territory's capital.

Welcomed at Juneau.

Gov. John W. Troy, of Alaska, and Joe Crosson, a hunting companion last year of Post's, welcomed the two on their arrival at Juneau.

They were the governor's guests that night at the territorial mansion. The next day it was still raining and their flight, which by now had become a "vacation trip," they said, was delayed.

Rogers bought rubbers, two raincoats and other equipment saying humorously "With this weather, I'll need lots of them."

Within a few days, they hopped again over into the historic Klondike gold territory, at Dawson, Y. T., and even there found themselves the objects of much attention. Miners and prospectors came miles to see them.

Within two days they took off again, their destination unannounced as usual, and they turned up at Aklavik, N. W. T., at the mouth of the Mackenzie river, on the Arctic coast.

Many Eskimoes.

Rogers commented in one of his dispatches that the Eskimoes there were "thicker than rich men at a save-the-constitution convention." He also found it cold. It was 40 above zero. Their stay there was short.

A flight back to interior Alaska, to Fairbanks, followed, and then to a commercial plane they flew south to Anchorage and over to the Matanuska project.

"Pioneering for spinach is different than pioneering for gold," said Rogers, but his other comment was favorable. "I didn't see any mosquitoes there," he said.

They returned to Fairbanks, where their plane had been serviced, and then followed their tragic flight north to Point Barrow, ending in disaster near their destination.

PORT EWEEN

Port Eween, Aug. 15 — The Reformed Church block party was largely attended last evening and was a decided success. The entertainment and music furnished by the 4-H Club under the direction of Miss Devine and the 4-H Drum Corps were greatly enjoyed.

Members of Hope Temple, No. 88, Pythian Sisters, are reminded to bring their dishes at the picnic to be held at "Camp Jumpin'" next Tuesday evening. Members will meet at Spinnaker's waiting room at 2:30 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Short and Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Short and children spent Thursday evening with Mr. Short's mother in Cottekill.

40 Reported Killed.

Athens, Aug. 16 (AP)—Sixty men were reported killed today in a fight between Albanian government forces and rebels marching on Thessalonica, the nation's capital, from the Greek district.

The battle is said to have occurred from 40 to 50 miles south of the capital, with two leaders of the government forces, Djelal Ardicar and Colonel Ghaffar, killed. Djelal was carried upon the authenticity of the reports by the similarity of the name of Colonel Ghaffar to that of British General Lord Gough, announced yesterday.

Opera At Pine Grove Pleased Big Audience

The first presentation in English of the opera "Cavalleria Rusticana," given by the Ernest Williams School of Music in its camp auditorium, Pine Grove, Saugerties, with Pierre Henrotte conducting, met with much enthusiasm from a large audience. From the rising of the curtain until its close every moment was filled with action of the utmost interest.

The story of the opera, which is a tale of love, passion, sorrow, and tragedy, grips its audience with an intensity that is unbelievable. Mascagni, the composer of the opera, is a master in depicting all of the moods; dramatic touches are blows in their directness and the presentation of events almost takes away the breath of the spectator.

The impressive characteristic of the music is its dramatic intensity. The opera is indeed a masterpiece and was performed as such. Cecile Jacobson, who played the role of Santuzza, carried her audience with her from the heights of happiness into the depths of despair. Her professional experience, which includes a concert tour of Finland and many concert engagements in this country, certainly was most valuable to her in this performance.

Lyman Congdon, tenor, who has made a concert tour of Europe and who has sung for the King of Norway, played the part of Turridu. His voice, which is clear and of the finest quality is admirably adapted for this part. Louise Llewellyn, who played the part of Lola, made a beautiful picture in her peasant costume and played her part to perfection.

Josephine Mortel Federick, who took the part of Lucia, played her part with a sincerity and style that touched the audience. Also, the brusque waggoner, played by Donald Fellows, of this vicinity, was most assertive in his character.

The chorus which assisted the principals was well worthwhile. The ease with which the difficult passages were sung showed fine training and study.

The orchestra was truly an organization of excellence. Playing the accompaniments of the soloists with a style and in a manner that would do credit to a group of professionals and bringing forth climaxes of an intensity that stirred one's innermost self, they deserved more than a little credit for the success of the performance.

Pierre Henrotte, concertmaster and a director of the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra, New York City, deserves the praise of all for again making the work of the master, Mascagni, live.

OLD-TIMERS' NIGHT SATURDAY AT STONY HOLLOW BAZAAR

The Rev. Father Hearon has designated Saturday evening, August 17 as old-timers' night at the bazaar for the benefit of St. John's Church. The bazaar, which has been taking place on the church grounds during the past few days. The history of St. John's Church is intimately bound up with the blue stone industry, which flourished in that part of Ulster county some three decades ago. Many of the old parishioners because of the defunct industry moved to New York, Kingston and other localities, particularly to nearby communities. In designating Saturday evening, the final evening of the bazaar, as old-timers' night Father Hearon is arranging a favorable opportunity to renew old acquaintances and friendship. A large gathering of the old parishioners living nearby is expected.

Mother, Child on Park Bench

New York, Aug. 16 (AP)—A woman who said that she and her three-year-old daughter had not eaten in three days was found on a bench on Morningside avenue early today by a patrolman, the little girl asleep in her lap. The woman described herself as Mrs. Cecil Camle of Paterson, N. J. She was hysterical at the police station where food was provided. A surgeon ordered her taken to Bellevue Hospital. The child was turned over to the children's society.

Here's a slenderly smart dress for mid-summer of modish wide colored silk that also caters for town for early fall wear.

Incidentally the attractive lines of the bodice, are rather slimming ones, too.

Style No. 2666 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46-inches bust. Size 36 requires 4 1/4 yards of 39-inch material with 1/4 yard of 39-inch contrasting.

Send TEN CENTS (10c) in stamps or coin (coin is preferred, for PATTERN. Write plainly NAME, ADDRESS AND STYLE NUMBER. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE YOU WISH.

BARBARA BELL FASHION PATTERNS

Pattern No. 1692-B

Afternoon Dress for the Last Days of Summer

The symmetry of lines in this dress is just about perfect. You see the wide, circular sleeves are set in with points that extend into the middle of the bodice, so there is the effect of a pointed panel. And then the same thing happens in the skirt, where inserts are set into the sides of the skirt, and the panel idea is repeated. Then there is a nicely draped cowl-neck, most becoming, and a slit down the back of the blouse, to make it easy to get into.

Chiffon is pretty grand for this sort of dress, although if you want to be a little less elegant there are lovely voiles. Then there is cotton lace, very practical and pretty, and eyelet embroidery, which is very effective.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1692-B is designed in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measurements 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 4 1/2 yards of 36-inch material.

Liana Merwin

The Italian art exhibition in Paris has had its effect on Parisian designers of fashion, many of the latest apparel and millinery styles for cocktail, restaurant or theatre. It is of corded antelope and features a ruffled back with the collar exposed at the sides.

The other semi-dressy model sketched at left is an adaptation of an original Sany model, being fashioned of shirred disks of rayon velvet in two-toned color effects.

Most of these new models conform snugly to the head—worn back to reveal the forehead but not far enough to reveal the hair—some set

PATTERN 5338

Add This Knitted Blouse to Your Wardrobe

Two colors are better than one, this season, and how better to combine them than in this attractive and flattering knitted blouse. With yarn so inexpensive too, and fall coming on apace, you can't afford to be without this little blouse to wear with a separate skirt, or under your suit. It is the type blouse that adds so much to a college girl's wardrobe. A very simple stitch that looks like little stars is used for the entire blouse, the contrast being gained by using two shades of the same color, as light and dark blue, black or white with a color, or two different colors. The long puff sleeve is very effective and comfortable for cool weather—the short sleeve is excellent for the blouse when worn with a suit. Round wooden buttons and belt buckle are a clever trimming. The pattern also contains directions for a knitted skirt.

In pattern 5338 you will find complete instructions for making the blouse shown in sizes 16-18 and 38-40; an illustration of it and of the stitches needed; material requirements, and color arrangements, as well as directions for making the skirt.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to the Kingston Daily Freeman Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y.

1/2 cup salt
1/2 cup water

Wash and clean chickens. Cut into serving pieces. Soak 30 minutes in cold water to cover in refrigerator. Drain and chill until cooking time. Roll chicken in flour and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Heat fat in frying pan. Add and quickly brown chicken. Add water, lower fire, cover and cook over moderate fire 30 minutes or until chicken is very tender when tested with fork.

Fresh Apple Pie
4 cups sliced apples
1/4 cup sugar
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon cloves

Bleed apples with sugar, sour and spices. Add salt. Pour into deep pie pan lined with unbaked crust. Add rest of ingredients. Cover with crust in which 4 holes have been made. Press edges of pie together. Bake 15 minutes in moderately hot oven. Lower fire and bake 40 minutes in moderately slow oven.

Crust (For 8 Crust Pie)
2 1/2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup cold water

Mix the flour and salt. Cut in lard with knife. Add water slowly, and when stiff dough forms, take up in hands and press into ball. Be careful not to over mix pastry. Break off 1/2 of dough and roll out and fit into pie pan. Add apple mixture and cover with rest of dough which has been rolled out to fit over top.

LONDON'S JAYWALKERS IGNORE TRAFFIC SIGNAL.

London (AP)—A census taken in Trafalgar Square, where guard-rails have been erected to protect jaywalkers from stepping in front of traffic, showed that when the automatic signals said "cross now" 13,292 people crossed during the same period.

Amazonian Iron Mines in Rio. Manaus, Brazil (AP)—Up here at the head of navigation on the Amazon, officials are predicting that iron mines, recently discovered in the state of Amazonas, are so rich that they will restore the prosperity which faded 25 years ago when the Brazil rubber industry collapsed.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By CLAUDE E. JAGGER

New York, Aug. 16 (AP).—The stock market displayed no great amount of vigor today, either in dips or rallies, but a steady undertone was apparent after a rather nervous opening.

Scattered issues were pushed up moderately while others slipped back a shade under renewed profit taking. The activity was not pronounced. Marketwise, the general run of news was unimpressive.

Commodities, including wheat, corn and cotton, showed no definite trend. Bonds just about held their own. Some of the gold currencies reacted in foreign exchange transactions. Sterling was heavy.

Advances of fractions to around a point were recorded by shares of N. Y. Central, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Kennecott, Anaconda, Budd Mfg., Thatcher Mfg., Fairbanks-Morse, Hayes Body, Servel, Bethlehem, National Distillers, Consolidated Gas and American Water Works. Among losers of as much were American Telephone, American Can, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, du Pont, Westinghouse and Johns-Manville.

Wadlin-Hasbrouck

Highland, Aug. 15.—The marriage of Miss Beatrice Hasbrouck, youngest daughter of Mrs. Mabel Hasbrouck and the late Warren G. Hasbrouck, to John F. Wadlin, son of Mrs. Charlotte Wadlin of White street, took place at the Hasbrouck Stone House at 4:30 o'clock Thursday, August 8. The ceremony took place before a bank of green and the decorations were of green and white. The Rev. D. S. Haynes, pastor of the Presbyterian Church was the officiating minister. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Carl Hasbrouck of Larchmont. She wore a white lace gown with short train and tulle trimmings and a tulle veil held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Her attendant was her sister, Mrs. Edgar Davis of Albany, who wore blue lace and carried Talleman roses and blue delphinium. The best man was Elbert M. Somers, Jr., of Brooklyn. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Fred Hamilton. Following the congratulations, refreshments were served by Monroe, caterers of Newburgh. Mr. and Mrs. Wadlin left later for New York, where they sailed on the American Trader for London. The bride's going away gown was an ensemble of navy blue with accessories to match. They expect to sail from Liverpool on August 30 on their return and will be at home in a newly furnished home on White street after September 9. Mr. Wadlin is a practicing lawyer and his wife is a graduate of the Syracuse law school and was in June admitted to the bar in this state. She has been associated with Mr. Wadlin in his office. Out of town guests among the nearly 100 present were: Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Davis and family, Albany; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sidel and son of Milwaukee, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hasbrouck and daughter of Larchmont, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wadlin and family of Rhinebeck, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wadlin and family, West Englewood, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wadlin, Brooklyn; George A. Dog Is Honored in Europe

The dog in Europe is still the friend of man. In France and Belgium he may be seen drawing the little milk wagons, and in Switzerland the monks of the Grand St. Bernard still lavish glory on his power to rescue the lost. Europeans have not forgotten that early men once worshipped the dog Anubis, or that the Ethiopians once elected a dog as king. Every dog has his day, but in Europe, it is a long and happy day.

Thirty Watches in Clock
Among the world's wonder clocks is one constructed by a convict who recently finished a term in a Continental penitentiary, says the Montreal Herald. Every piece of his strange timepiece, down to the fastest wheel, is made of wood. The clock contains 30 different watches, each showing the correct time in one of the principal cities of the world. Another feature is a calendar which shows the passing of the days, weeks and months.

Wetterhahn Is Now On Fire Board

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman today appointed Edwin L. Wetterhahn, Abel street grocer, as a member of the fireboard to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mark Bacharach.

Mr. Wetterhahn, who resides with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Wetterhahn, at 41 Wurts street, is associated with his father in the grocery business at 87 Abel street, the store being situated across from Cornell Hose fire house. Commissioner Wetterhahn has been a member of Cornell Hose for 11 years.

The appointment of Mr. Wetterhahn as a commissioner is considered as one that insures the service of an active and intelligent young man, keenly interested in the welfare of the fire department, and is expected to meet with general approval.

Mr. Wetterhahn, who is a graduate of Kingston High School, class of 1922, said he was more than proud of the honor conferred upon him by Mayor Heiselman and will endeavor to fulfill the duties of the office as well as did his predecessor, the late Commissioner Bacharach, who also belonged to Cornell Hose of which he was president for two terms.

The Wetterhahn family is one of the best known in Kingston, having been in business downtown for approximately 75 years. David Wetterhahn, father of the new commissioner, continued the grocery started by his father, Marx, in 1860, and with the help of his son is still conducting it.

All Sorts of Muskets in Use During Revolution

In the American Revolutionary war the battling patriots of the new world carried all sorts of muskets, and a few were armed with the long rifle, later known as the Kentucky rifle. At Bunker Hill the British troops carried smoothbore muskets, and the farmers and militiamen who faced them likewise were armed with smoothbores, with the likelihood that a few of the last named carried the rifle that had been introduced into this country by German immigrants.

The smoothbore musket of the revolution, and the weapon with which a majority of Washington's troops were armed, was the French Charleville musket, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune. It had a maximum range of about 800 yards, or a half mile, and an accurate range of about 100 yards. If a soldier could hit a man or a horse at 100 yards with his musket he was considered a good shot, the order of the officers to the men then invariably being "wait until you see the whites of the enemies' eyes." The long rifle, on the other hand, was a weapon in existence at that time, had a maximum range, with a full charge of powder, of about 1,200 yards, or three-quarters of a mile, and was accurate up to 150 to 200 yards, depending entirely upon who was doing the shooting. Some of the most skillful of the marksmen of that time could shoot the old long rifle accurately at a distance of even more than 200 yards.

Tin, Important Metal,
Has Many Uses in World

Tin is one of the most important of all the metals and plays a leading role in civilization. In some respects this is the age of tin, declares a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The drama of tin is presented daily in some form each of the 24 hours. It ornaments the millionaire's palace and brings comfort to the humblest home. Research is extending its uses still further.

Tin is dished up daily in newspapers, because type means tin, as well as in the kitchen, where it is found in cooking utensils, in the tinful wrapping countless forms of food—not forgetting the canned fruit or fish or vegetables which account for the hundreds of millions of tin cans used every year and tons of tinplate for the world's cooks. This list is almost endless, for tin is found in the telephone, radio, motor car, typewriter and the electric light system. As an alloy it makes aviation, transport, toyland, fireworks and marine engineering.

Bed springs are coated with tin to prevent rust. Tin salts are used to hold loose silk fibers together. Take the toilet. The bathtub is coated with oxidized tin. Tooth paste comes out of a tin tube. Razors are being edged, thanks to tin, and the same applies to scissors and other cutting implements.

Arrival of Pennsylvania Dutch

The Pennsylvania Dutch came to America as early as 1683 from the Rhine Valley and from Switzerland. They came in large numbers for reasons of religious freedom and with a sure instinct they picked Pennsylvania's rich lands. They created large farms and marked these farms with the six-pointed star, which has a "magical" significance. Many of the Pennsylvania Dutch always have believed in witches. These farm symbols are to help keep evil spirits away. Witch doctors still practice here and there.

The Flock of Lightning
A flock of lightning birds from an extremely small part of a second for a single flash, to even a full second or more for a flash made up of several branches. The total length, too, of a streak of lightning varies greatly. When the discharge is from the cloud to the earth, the length of the path is seldom more than a mile and a half, but when the discharge is from one cloud to another, the path is more curved and bent and its total length at times probably six, nine, or even twelve miles.

EXPECT PLANE FOR
$700 ON SALE SOONExperiments Give Promise,
Director Vidal Says.

Detroit.—Engineer Vidal, federal director of air commerce, reviewed the progress made here to date in the nine most promising projects concerned with the development of a light and inexpensive airplane sufficiently safe for any automobile driver to fly.

Despite the apparent inability of the aircraft industry to believe in the possibility of turning out a $700 airplane as indicated by the machines on exhibit at this 1935 all-American aircraft show, Vidal asserted there is every hope that such a machine will be on the market within a short time. He said several builders whose experimental designs were ordered built by the bureau have turned out machines which seemingly meet all these demands.

"At least three of our projects are very promising indeed," he said. "The ships can be flown absolutely safely by novice pilots. They do not spin, they land themselves hands off or with the stick all the way back from 300 feet. They are, what we think, safe airplanes."

Ships Are Safe.

"Don't mistake me to say that these ships are unsafe," he said, and he waved out the window where several transport air liners were drawn up before the Detroit City Terminal building, dozens of smaller planes were "hopping passengers" and Vidal's own cabin monoplane he had flown down from Washington with Frederick R. Neely, chief of the information section of the bureau.

"Properly flown they are safe, but the planes we are building can be flown with only a couple hours' instruction almost by anyone at all."

The plane nearest completion is the tailless Waterman high wing monoplane. The enclosed cabin seats two, and has a 95 horse power motor turning a pusher propeller at the rear. The rudders are at the wing tips with all-erons and elevators in the trailing edge of the wing.

"We are ready to give this machine an approved type certificate (the ultimate stamp of Department of Commerce approval) and it is to be flown east this week by a novice pilot. It passed all its tests with flying colors, having a top speed slightly over 110 miles an hour, and can be landed with wheel brakes locked. We tried for two weeks to spin it, but couldn't."

Another machine is the Welch high wing monoplane with pusher motor. Its tail is at the rear, on the end of an outrigger boom. Fred Welch of the Langley field, Va., N. A. C. A. laboratories was the original designer, but it now is being completed by Fairchild. It has "down beautifully," Vidal said.

Speed Over 110 Miles.

The "roadable autogiro" is entirely different sort of machine, Neely stated. When finally delivered to the bureau in October it is expected to be a sensation. Direct lift, meaning that no forward run will be necessary for it to get into the air perpendicular descent, cruising speed over 110 miles an hour on a 90 horse power motor, and gearing to allow it to be driven at 20 miles an hour over highways, the pilot's "garage" and a clear field, are the unusual characteristics.

There are three attempts under way to convert inexpensive production type automobile engines for airplane use. One is a Hudson Terraplane engine with a belt and pulley reduction gear, another is a Ford V8 engine, and the third is a Plymouth motor.

Dean Hammond, youthful designer of the Hammond V safety plane which in its original version has failed to meet the speed requirements of the Department of Commerce contract under which it was built, appeared at the show and he said he is building a new machine which will incorporate all the safety features of the first one, but with top speeds considerably above the 110 minimum demand.

Take Movies of Interior of Body to Help Science

Paris.—Motion pictures of the interior of the human anatomy are being shown here as the result of a device developed by the noted radiologist, Dr. George Dumas.

It consists of an extremely strong series of X-rays transmitting light onto an extremely sensitive film.

No claims are made for it by the thirty-five-year-old inventor beyond the fact that it does take motion pictures of the interior of the human body. Enthusiasts feel that it has opened an unlimited field of study. Hereafter examination of the human interior has been limited to radiographic and radiographic examinations. The first picture costing a shadow of the interior as a fluorescent screen. The second—famously known as X-raying—presents a photograph. Both have their faults.

Ukrainian Youth Builds
Smallest Working Motor

Kiev, Ukraine.—A miniature electric motor, said to be the smallest working motor in the world, has been made here by Victor Mikolaitchuk, eleven years old. It weighs just under one-sixteenth of an ounce.

The Institute of Physics of the All-Ukrainian Academy of Sciences has awarded Victor's motor and named it as being a genuine working model. It is brought into action by a two-ohm battery. The miniature is only five millimeters in diameter, although upon it runs 450 turns of fine wire.

Small Electric Development
Announcement will appear shortly of an action of law to be held in the Rochester Park section, where some 80 new houses have been built during the past eight years. The action will start on August 30 and continue six days. Mayor Posen will lead the opposition.

WAR -- KIDNAPPING -- POLITICS -- DISASTER--

but ... it's the LITTLE THINGS that count...

New drapes for the guest room, and Junior's first haircut. A new recipe for peach pie and new pans for baking it. A picnic at the beach, and a new hat for the weekly bridge. Every day events? Of course! But they're the things that make life livable!

What's a war in Illyria and another arctic expedition, compared to the thrill of the first glimpse of the family that's moving in next door, and the delivery of a shining new refrigerator? What's a royal wedding, and twelve rooms filled with gifts, when Anne has her fifth birthday tomorrow? They're interesting enough, something to talk about, to wonder at, perhaps, but pretty far away from that most important spot and the people who live there... Your own home.

That's where your heart is, and that's where the real thrills lie, in the things that concern you and the people who live around you, next door, in the next block, anywhere in town. There's news about them in every issue of the Daily Freeman, in "inside page" stories—and in every ad too, for the ads in The Freeman are news! There's news about new clothes for the family, and new food for the table, and new furniture for the home. There's news about new entertainment and new ways to get to it. There's news about something new on every page, from the latest dispatch on the front page to the new shoes for Anne on the last... all written to you and for you, put up in a neat package and delivered at your door-step every day.

Heavy Hitting in 1st Inning Gives Newburgh Cops Win, 8-5

Attack on Stoudt's Slants Gives Visitors 5 Runs in Opening Frame at Kingston Fair Grounds — Foster Features with Homer for Visitors — Mayor Heiselman Throws Out First Ball.

Bothered by the flint that hovers over the Kingston Fair Grounds every year when they play Newburgh, Sergeant James V. Simpson's Kingston Police team dropped an 8-5 decision to Johnny Corkedale's Hill City nine, Thursday afternoon. More than 300 fans looked on as the Newburghers avenged the 11-5 trouncing they received at home on August 7 from the Simpsonites.

One bad inning, the first as usual, won the game for the visitors. In this frame the Corkedale brigade nicked Stoudt for six hits and cashed in on five of them for runs. For the rest of the game, though, Stoudt, ill as he was, and looked it, bore down on the Newburgh batsmen holding them to five bingles.

Newburgh got its other three runs in the second and third innings, scoring one and two respectively. After the third frame, the visitors stayed in the zero column. Kingston tallied likewise in the first three stanzas, scoring one run in the first, three in the second and one in the third.

Foster, the Newburgh shortstop, featured the attack of the invaders with a home run in the second inning, belting the ball over left field fence to win the suit promised by Lyman-Berkwitz and Scott, manufacturers of men's clothing in his home town.

Bill "Moll" Leonard, Kingston's shortstop, belted out a three bagger, the first of the game to cop the Adams bat offered by Al & Lou's Terminal Lunch, Kingston. Leonard made the smash on his first trip to the plate.

Newburgh took the first turn at bat, and had Sergeant Simpson in a rage all through the opening inning. Haight singled to left, Shaw fanned and Foster of home run fame got a one-baser. Lewis connected for a double and scored Haight and Foster. "Two runs already," said the sergeant as he tore his hair and yelled for the Kingston night stick wielders to bear down on it.

Sergeant Corkedale strode to the plate and met one of Stoudt's choice ones for a single. Prescott doubled and Edwards made a single. Tom McGrane fumbled Tierney's grounder and Martin got to first on a fielder's choice, permitting Newburgh's three other runs.

In the second half of the opening frame, "Moll" Leonard started the Simpsonites off with his triple, scoring on Foster's error. His was the only run for the locals in the inning.

Foster's homer in the second gave Newburgh another tally, and Sergeant Simpson got wilder than ever, hopping all over the dugout with orders to "pull yourselves together and fight out there." This must have done some good because the Kingstonians garnered three runs in their portion of the inning.

Wes Cramer singled, Ed Mahoney walked and after Len Helyea struck out Stoudt drove a line triple to right field, bringing in two runs. Freddy was relieved on third by Ralph Stewart, who went home for Kingston's third run when Shaw errored.

Newburgh got its two in the third on two walks, Cramer's error and Haight's single. The last of the men in the visiting lineup went out in order in the last three innings, six by the strikeout route.

Kingston made its run in the third on a single by McGrane, another by Stewart, who replaced Sammons in the first after Frank turned his ankle going into second, and a one-baser smash by Wes Cramer that brought in McGrane.

Yesterday's game put the Kingston and Newburgh Coppers on even standing for the summer, a situation similar to last year when the Simpsonites won at Newburgh and lost at home.

"It just seems that our boys can't win in Kingston and Corkedale's team can't show their home how it should be done at home." The sergeant wanted Thursday's game badly, it being one of the features of the police conference here.

SIDELINERS. The Doodledorfers, led by Harry Sille, the band that puts pep into all of the American Legion conventions, played before the game and at intervals during the diamond war. Aside from the music there was little of any thing else to cheer the coppers. The crowd was more than quiet.

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman tossed the first ball, which Umpire Bill Schwab called a strike.

Ed "Chief" Leonard and Bill Schwab held several debates, the husky copper telling Willie how poor he thought his eyesight was and the ump explaining to the chief how to swing at 'em.

Wes Cramer ended the game by striking out Tierney, who by swinging the ball into the Kingston microphone broke the silence of a perfect day at bat. Wes hit every time on his first three trips to the plate.

Foster, besides featuring with his homer, and a single, performed well in the field, one of his stellar plays being the catch he made of Bill Leonard's pop fly in the seventh.

Freddy Stoudt has not been feeling well all week, and was in poor shape for yesterday's game. But he just wouldn't listen to starting out the game. If he could have done something about that first inning, the flint might have been different.

Frank Sammons was counted on as a relief pitcher, but even if he were needed he couldn't have gone to the

Will Play At The Athletic Field Monday

FRED CARRINGTON

Fred Carrington is a member of the pitching staff of the Washington Stars, who will be seen in action at the Athletic Field on Monday evening when the visiting semi-pro team crosses bats with the City League All Stars.

Carrington was at one time a member of the colorful Cuban Stars and is now the playing manager of the Washington Stars. Fred, so far this season, has won 15 games and been on the short end only four times. He is a slow ball pitcher and can hit them a mile, something on the order of Wes Ferrell of the Boston Red Sox. In other words, he is the Ferrell of the Colored ranks.

Bob Taylor will probably be on the receiving end of the battery. Bob has seen service with the Bacharach Giants, formerly of the Negro National League, and the Brooklyn Royal Giants.

Joe Kirkwood To Play At Catskill

An exhibition golf match will be given at the Catskill Country Club, Catskill, on Tuesday afternoon, August 20. The match will be between Joe Kirkwood, the world's greatest trick shot artist, and Alex Gerlak, Catskill Club Professional, and one of the Capital District's leading professionals. Eighteen holes will be played starting at 2:30 p. m. Immediately after the match Joe Kirkwood will give a lecture and an exhibition of his famous trick shots. The golfers of Kingston and vicinity are cordially invited to attend.

Sound on account of turning his ankle in the first inning. He watched the game from the bench after Dr. Connelly, police commissioner, rendered first aid.

Sergeant Charles Phinney was the ticket chopper, and a popular fellow with the kiddies who were invited to the game free. They all gave the "sarge" a big smile as they passed him at the gate.

Pete Keresman wasn't in the lineup, his position as president of the police conference keeping him occupied with too many official duties to permit his donning a uniform.

WASHINGTON
!!

KRESS WAS BEEN PLAYING GREAT BALL SINCE THE SENATORS GAVE HIM ANOTHER CHANCE TO RE-ESTABLISH HIMSELF

Whether Bill Terry's Giants alone for last season's debacle by walking off with the National League pennant, they apparently have no intention of letting the rough-and-ready Cardinals take it away while they're playing each other.

Just as they rallied in St. Louis a couple of weeks ago and routed the Cards in one "crucial" series, the Giants have started to dispose of another St. Louis threat in the current meeting. By winning a 5 to 4 decision yesterday they prevented St. Louis from taking the lead by direct attack.

The triumph, in a bitterly fought game that ended with another magnificent "beat" as Manager Frankie Frisch fanned with his bat on his shoulder and the tying run on second base in the ninth, gave the Giants a four-game lead over their challengers. The series has only two more games.

The Cards dropped back into the odd position of holding second place on the percentages while actually trailing the Cubs by a half game. Chicago moved up again by plastering an 11 to 3 defeat on the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The chief Cardinal hopes are that the Cubs will knock off the Giants and then be knocked off in turn, or that both those teams will prove weak on the road. Of the 48 remaining St. Louis games, 30 are on the home lot. The Giants and Cubs' programs are about evenly divided.

The status of the American League race remained unchanged as the Tigers and Yankees both won handily and remained six games apart.

Detroit turned back the Senators 6 to 3 as Charley Gehring, injured second baseman, left the bench to drive in the deciding run in a three-run burst in the eighth.

The Yanks, held to one hit in six frames by Willis Huddlin, blasted him from the hill with a five-hit, three-run rally in the seventh to beat the Indians 3-1.

The third place Red Sox turned back the White Horse of Chicago 3-1 as homers by Cronin, Werber and Cooke decided a mound duel between Lefty Grove and Les Tieja.

The Athletics knocked off the cellar-dwelling Browns again, 5 to 2.

Bob Brown, who had not won a game all season, turned in a two-hit shutout for the Braves and received the backing of Wally Berger's 26th homer as the Braves whitewashed the Reds 8 to 0.

The Phillies cut loose with a 13-hit assault and trimmed the Pirates 9 to 1.

22 Shooters At Skeet Field On Thursday

Only half of the members of the two skeet teams have finished the third round of the Dinner Match so the team scores can not be published this week.

It is hoped that the delinquent members will bring their scores up-to-date next Thursday.

Twenty-two shooters were at the skeet field Thursday afternoon and a great improvement is shown in all of the individual scores.

High scratch scores of the day were made by Longmeyer and Osterbrun, each scoring 22. Four shooters, Van Winkle, Schum, Osterbrun and O'Brien, scored 23 with their handicaps.

BERARDI A. C. TO MEET HERCULES AT THE ATHLETIC FIELD TONIGHT

Berardi A. C., and Hercules are slated to meet in a City League game at the Athletic Field this evening at 6:15. The game is very important to the Berardis, who are leading the league in the second half, as they need this game and one other one to clinch the half.

Julius Chick, fast-ball artist, will labor on the mound for the Berardis, while "Spot" Cullen will be held in reserve. Either George Zadany or Mac Tiano will do the receiving.

Jimmy Martin or Eddie Scherer can be called on to do the elbowing for the Powdermen, with Scherer likely to get the nod. Al Short will labor behind the bat.

Scherer Loses by K.O. to Sorenson Sully Drops Decision To Lambert

Golden Glove Champs All Score Wins at Legion Fights Before Largest Crowd of Season — Jack Doyle, Irish Heavy Champ, Among Celebrities at Ringside.

Amid a gay and colorful gathering of ringside celebrities who helped to make up the largest boxing crowd of the season, Carl Sorenson, 135 pound boxer from Waterford, scored a popular knockout victory over Lou Scherer, 140, from New York, in the main bout at the American Legion Stadium last night.

Scherer substituted for Marty Moskowitz, Monticello lightweight, who was unable to box due to a sprained ankle. The club physician, Dr. L. E. Sanford, refused to allow Moskowitz to fight after he examined him in the dressing room. Moskowitz was at the ringside, however, and was introduced.

Announcer Sam Riber also introduced Jack Doyle and his wife, the former Judith Allen, Dan Morgan, former manager of Gene Tunney and Thomas McGovern, manager of Jack Doyle.

When the big Irish heavyweight took his bow the audience applauded vigorously and many yelled "Sing us a song, Jack." After a few minutes hesitation Doyle smilingly obliged with "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Also present from the Doyle camp at Lomontville were Mickey McAvoy, Brooklyn heavy-weight, and Willie McFee of Florida, who, since the death of Young Stribling, is considered the heavyweight champion of the south. These two sparring partners of Doyle's put on a sizzling two-round exhibition.

In the main bout, the boys met in the middle of the ring and Sorenson began to hurl quick "one-two" left jabs at Scherer's face. The New York boy had a hard time keeping away and was continually being nicked. In the latter part of the round Sorenson began to throw his right and Scherer took some hard ones on the side of his jaw. Scherer could not seem to land effectively. Both boys were in the center of the ring sparring at the bell. In the second stanza, Sorenson measured his opponent and landed some hard right smashes that had Scherer reeling. Soon after the opening of the third round, Scherer hit the canvas for the count of nine and was in a bad way on regaining his feet. Sorenson closed in and landed another hard right and Scherer was counted out after one minute and thirty seconds of fighting in the third round.

For the semi-final bout, Sallor Sully of Mechanicville, who won his last two fights in the Legion ring, found the going too rough when he met it up with Charlie Jackson, 170 pound, Metropolitan Golden Gloves champion from New York. In the first round Sully took two hard overhand rights on the side of his jaw that slowed him up considerably. The colored fighter was fast and the sailor could not land an effective blow. During the second and third rounds Sully landed some of his jabs and right swings but the negro kept boring in and at the end of the round landed another of his hard rights. During the fourth stanza he continued to use his right and Sully was weakened under the terrific pounding. Suddenly Jackson shot across another right with lightning speed and the sailor went down and took the count of nine. He managed to struggle to his feet and hung on to the end of the round. Smelling salts revived him for the fifth and he sparred with Jackson and managed to keep away from the champion's right. The negro star was not as active in this round and Sully stayed the route. Jackson gained a unanimous decision.

In another five round feature, Jimmie Lambert, 146 pound international welterweight champion, who has never been defeated, failed to put over a coup de grace on Jake Small, 1934 Golden Glove champ from Albany. Small was hit hard for counts of nine. The bell ended the fight in the fifth when he was taking his second count of nine. Lambert got the decision. Billy Venezuela of New York, a national bantamweight champion, scored a knockout over Charlie Ferri of Albany in one minute and seconds of the fourth round.

Joe Williams, 131, of New York International lightweight champion, outpointed Minnie Acceto, 134, Mechanicville in five rounds. Babe Maranucci, 135, of Troy, knocked out Harry Husted, 135, Catskill, in one minute and 32 seconds of the second round of a scheduled three round fight.

Officials were Bill Singer, referee, Sam Riber, announcer, Sam Jackson and Bill Rodell, judges, and Charlie Nettis, timekeeper.

Local sportsmen holding boating permits issued by the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity.

city of New York, for electricity. boats on the waters of the Ashokan reservoir should, for their own safety, observe the new rule No. 3 that reads as follows: Rule 3 in its new edition limits the occupancy of boats on our waterways lakes and reservoirs to three persons. The inclusion of this provision has become necessary because of the overcrowding of boats on some of the waters and the attendant hazard. Both the lower and upper basins of the Ashokan reservoir are large bodies of water that become exceedingly rough on a windy day. An overcrowded boat presents an added hazard at such times. It is well to keep in the corner at such times even with a normal load.

That the fishermen in the lower basin of the Ashokan reservoir are beginning to strike artificial bait can be attested to by the fact that Ray Tilton and Ray Wince each reeled one weighing 2 1/2 pounds.

Under the excellent care of George N. Kinney, the trout in the Water County Fish and Game Association's rearing pool are growing splendidly. Not a single trout is downed due to disease. The trout are fed a food prepared by Edgar R. Hewitt, noted trout culturist. This dry food is mixed with sugar and is fed six days of the week in the afternoon and in the evening. All food is fed from buckets in prepared charts. The trout are fed in a manner that is not intended to encourage overfishing. "Waiting Post" To House Ex-Empress

Pending Revival Of Austrian Throne

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Reichenau, Austria (AP)—When ex-Empress Zita returns to Austria from Belgian exile late this fall she, in all likelihood, will occupy what is now a boarding house.

Villa Wartholz, in the watering place of Reichenau, was the favorite summer residence of Emperor Karl, and it was here that Otto, claimant of the Austrian throne, was born November 20, 1912.

Monks Named Estate

Zita and her younger children, it is generally taken for granted, will live at Villa Wartholz pending developments in the plans to restore the monarchy. She sojourned here last on October 22, 1918, shortly before the Austro-Hungarian empire collapsed.

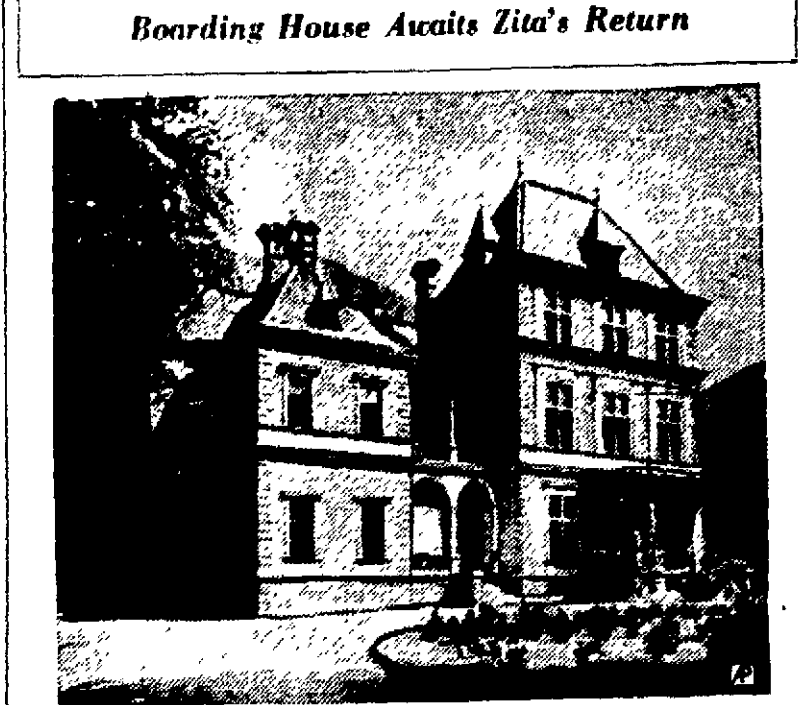

Wartholz derives its name from the fact that outside the premises, on the cross-road to the Semmering mountains on the one hand and Bad Eichen, a summer resort, on the other, there is a post with a votive shrine and a cross on top, known as the "Wartholz" (which means "Waiting Wood").

This whole region in the Rax mountains once belonged to Neuberger monastery in Styria and from time to time the prior would come here for an inspection. The local clergy then would await him at the "Waiting Wood", or post.

Landlady Profits by Legends
Karl was so fond of this Hapsburg estate that, although the imperial family during its exile often was in dire straits, Zita never could bring herself to sell it. Instead, she rented it to a boarding housekeeper who makes much of the fact that this is a Hapsburg possession.

The bed-room occupied by Karl and Zita, for instance, commands a higher price than any other room, because many a sentimental Austrian is willing to pay for the privilege of sleeping in royal beds.

In the big living room, the many antlers of deer shot by the last Austro-Hungarian monarch have been left exactly as Karl had them placed. In other rooms are costly paintings, furniture and photographs of the imperial family.

There is a fine view from the spacious front veranda of the Rax mountains. Below, in soft, rolling grass terraces, the estate extends down to the valley.

War Councils on Lawn

Many important conferences of the World War took place on these terraces. Karl had the habit of pacing up and down them when he had affairs of importance to discuss with guests.

Behind the castle a swimming pool is hidden among the trees and a little farther on one finds a children's play house.

Thereby hangs a tale! With the Hapsburgs it was a custom that every member of the family had to learn a trade. Karl and his brother, Archduke Maximilian, chose carpentry and, to convince their parents that they knew their trade, built this play house.

Ominously enough, they named it "Pechthurn Haus", an inscription which still adorns the miniature structure. "Pech" means bad luck, "Thurn" (or "Turn"), as it is moderately spelled) means tower.

The name recalls that Karl died a pauper, in exile on the Island of Madeira.

FREE TAXIS TO EDDYVILLE CARNIVAL TOMORROW NIGHT

The annual carnival for the benefit of the Wilbur-Eddyville parish will take place Saturday night on Cutler Hill. Four hundred attended last year and it is hoped this year to increase this number with two novelties.

One—Free taxis will leave Wilbur Square as fast as filed from 7:30 to 8:30 returning from the carnival continuously to Wilbur Square from 11:30 to 12:30.

The other novelty is a second platform at the other end of the midway, one platform for dancing, music by Ernie's Orchestra, the other for the alternating acts of vaudeville, the boys pie eating contest, and amateur night.
